The Surprise at Henderson's Hill—How the Rebels were Taken In—Two Hundred and Twenty-eight Men, Twenty-two Officers and Four Pieces of Artillery Captured.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALEXANDRIA, LA., Wednesday, March 23, 1864.

Quite an excitement has been created by the first movements of the army from this point. On Monday, March 21, Gen. SMITH ordered a forward movement of about 2,000 infantry, under command of Gen. MOWER, accompanied by three regiments of Gen. LEE's cavalry, under command of Col. LOCKE, and four squadrons of Col. DUDLEY's command, led by Maj. MAGEE along the Red River road in search of the enemy. Col. LOCKE led the advance, and about thirteen miles out came up with skirmishers of Col. VERGER's Second Louisiana rebel cavalry. This regiment had been constantly watching us since we left New-Iberia, and one or two small brushes had been indulged in. Col. LOCKE pushed forward, driving them seven miles, constantly skirmishing, until the enemy reached a strong position called Henderson's Hill, where he considered himself strong enough to spend the night. During the afternoon it rained heavy, and it might be supposed that any troops having a decent regard to the comforts of war would go into camp. But, arrived in front of their position at nightfall, a portion of LOCKE' cavalry, with a section of RAWNS' battery, was ordered to the rear. This was the Sixteenth Indiana mounted infantry, under command of Lieut.-Col. RENFRO, while the balance of the cavalry amused them in front. After a detour of sixteen miles, Col. RENFRO reached the rear of the enemy's position. Here he captured a courier, with dispatches from Gen. TAYLOR, who was advancing with a supporting force. A squadron of Col. RENFRO was at times completely surrounded by TAYLOR's men, but managed to keep them in check, while Capt. DOXEY, with two companies, engaged the pickets of the enemy. This was cleverly done. His men, dismounted, advanced in small squads directly up to the rebel pickets, greeting them heartily with,

"How are you, boys?" and various slaps on the back, &c., the friends rather than enemies. This expedient quite disarmed the rebels, who said—

"Why, who are you?"

"Why, the Third Texas; don't you know us? We have come to help you against these d——d Yankees."

"Hurrah! Bully for you!" &c.

In this cold, rainy night, what could be pleasanter than friends, and especially friends to help against the opprobrious Yankees?

After getting well warmed, our boys said to them: "Now, boys, you must surrender, for we are the damned Yankees themselves."

"No you don't."

"But we do; surrender and sit down."

And so the disagreeable truth came upon these damp Louisiana fellows. Picket after picket was, in this way, successfully captured and sent to the rear, without the firing of a shot or alarming the main body.

Capt. DOXEY then entered the rebel camp with his cavalry, while a body of infantry supports were deployed on his right. There he captured almost without resistance, the surprised and astonished enemy. Four pieces of artillery were captured, two just as they were being brought into line—one of their officers saying, "Don't fire, they are our own boys." Unfortunately for him it did not prove correct, and the four guns are now ours, and I fancy the too confiding officer finds himself just now belonging to us also.

A squad of RENFRO's command surrounded a house in which a party of rebels were engaged in preparing their frugal repast, and the sounds from within indicated that they were quite comfortable in their minds at least, if their bodies were not. One of the men then knocked at the door.

"Who's there?"

"Federals!"

"None of your joking—come in."

The door was opened, and the "gray backs" were a little astonished at the sight of the "blue bellies," as they are pleased to call us in their sportive moods. (I believe rebels have such moods occasionally.)

"By—, that's so;" said one of them, who drew and discharged his pistol.

His arm was at once disabled by a shot from one of our men, and the order was given them to surrender at once, or they would be sent to another and a better place.

They quickly obeyed, and our men took the whole party prisoners, and found the wounded man to be the famous scout BAILEY SMITH, who, as Col. LOCKE said, had given us as much trouble as any other man in the district.

RENFRO, with a few of his men, were guarding a squad of some twenty prisoners about a camp-fire, when a rebel officer dashed and said:

"Good evening, gentlemen—enjoying yourselves, eh?" and seemed to have an impulse to dismount, but suddenly, seeing the condition of affairs, his impulse was quite strong to ride away, so he said: "Good evening, gentlemen, and good night," and put his horse into a gallop; but it so happened that two of RENFRO's men galloped by his side and soon brought him back, and allowed him to sit around the cheerful fire with the rest. Col. RENFRO, not unfaithful of the duties of hospitality, endeavored to engage him in conversation, to which he did not respond with the urbanity for which this Southern people once prided themselves. He said:

"You think it all very fine, I suppose, but in about five minutes it will be all right, and you will be my prisoners."

It did not turn out that way.

So far as I have been able to learn, the whole command, infantry and cavalry, behaved well, in this bold and successful attack; but the chief work fell upon the cavalry, who certainly managed the matter most dexterously and bravely.

The capture of the pickets began about 8 o'clock in the evening, and at midnight the whole force was captured. The appearance of the prisoners is not jovial, but we trust that a long-continued association with us will improve it, and perhaps convert them into good Union men, if not into Abolitionists.

The cavalry engaged consisted of the Sixteenth Indiana Mounted Infantry, the Sixth Missouri Cavalry, the Second Louisiana Mounted Infantry, and four squadrons of the Third Massachusetts Cavalry.

The casualties were few, being Color Sergeant of Gen. BANKS' Staff, wounded in the thigh, the ball passing between the artery and the bone. Col. LOCKE reports two men killed, one wounded and three missing. Most of these happened during the skirmishes of the afternoon—the night affair having been a surprise rather than a fight.

This clever affair resulted in the capture of two hundred and thirty-eight enlisted men and twenty-two officers.

The following are the names of the officers:

Second-Lieut. N. D. Calhoun, Capt. Staff Officer E. L. Bigco, Second-Lieut. Joseph Henry, First-Lieut. E. A. Carmouche, Second-Lieut. A. V. Carter, First-Lieut. R. M. Walsh, Major N. O. Bressenie, Capt. F. A. Prudhomme, Lieut.-Col. Jas. D. Blair, Second-Lieut. John S. Sibley, Jr.; Second-Lieut. C. F. Dranguet, Jr.; Second-Lieut. N. R. Gein, Second-Lieut. D. C. Paul, First-Lieut. J. D. Gumbes, First-Lieut. Commanding Battery James M. Renton, Capt. A. C. Broussard, Second-Lieut. J. Broussard, Adjutant-Quartermaster Second Louisiana Cavalry R. W. Serma, Assistant-Surgeon F. C. Thompson, Surgeon R. T. Gibbs, Second-Lieut. J. J. Bassier, First-Lieut. Crescent Regiment R. W. Mowett.

Four pieces of artillery, and about 400 horses, which will refresh Gen. LEE's command, somewhat depleted by a long and hard march of six days from Franklin.

The impression is that Gen. LEE and his officers are not ashamed of their brilliant little dash.

OUR NEW-ORLEANS CORRESPONDENCE.

Dull Times—The Election of Delegates to the Constitutional Convention—Immense Triumph of the Free State or Hahn Party—Rosecline, Durant and Rozier—Army Movements—The Weather.

NEW-ORLEANS, Friday, April 1, 1864.

DULL TIMES.

The same awful feeling of unquiet suspense just now pervading the entire country, from Maine to the Rio Grande, is also felt in this Department; except that it is perhaps even intensified here by contrast with the excitement of elections through which we have just passed. Never was there such an absolute dearth of news of every kind. The Commanding-General is away in the field with the best part of his officers and troops; the Quartermaster is also off about his business with the army somewhere; so that even the little gleam of life which was generally to be seen frequenting headquarters is temporarily suspended, and New-Orleans is about as quiet as Herculaneum or Pompeii.

THE ELECTION

for delegates to the Constitutional Convention, which commenced their sittings on Wednesday, the 6th of April, took place according to direction, on the 26th ult., and resulted in the overwhelming triumph of what is called the Free State or Hahn party. With the exception of two or three names on the other, or "Citizens'" Free-State ticket—and there are two or three names of no prominence whatever—the latter was completely defeated at the polls. This is to be regretted; for, although there were unquestionably many first-class names upon the victorious ticket, nobody can attempt to deny that there were also upon it many names that had no business to be there. Nobody will have the audacity to pretend that such rejected names as Horner, Duncan, Schuppert, Straight, Whitaker, Hiestand, &c., would not have reflected far more credit on the State, and have put up in possession of men far more qualified to make laws for us than the same number of names I could strike out from the other ticket almost with my eyes shut.

For this reason it is to be deeply regretted that the two wings of the Free State party—having no contention about measures between them—could not have rallied around the same men upon one ticket. However, it is no use talking now—what cannot be cured must be endured; and the only thing for all sensible men now to do, is just to take the material such as we find it and make the most we can of it. Grumbling and fault-finding are not certainly going to help us.

As to the "Conservative," alias "Copperhead," party, nobody seems to know anything at all about them. They were seen and heard of no more, on the day of election, than if such a party had never been in existence. Whether in dignity, or disgust, or despair, I know not, but they kept as aloof from the election as if it had been going on among the Icalanders.

One man has, however, come out from among them, at a late hour, to throw the weight of his great influence in the cause of the Free State movement, and has been elected—a name that will prove a tower of strength among all the native sons of Louisiana; I mean CRAIGHEAD ROSECLINE. A leaven of only two or three more such men—say DURANT and ROZIER, for instance—would have formed so powerful a nucleus of feeling and interest through the State, that it would scarcely have mattered who and what the rest were. I am very sorry these distinguished gentlemen did not see fit to adopt the wise and bold course of ROSECLINE. It would have been infinitely better for their State and for themselves.

Of course, until the convention meets we can have nothing to say about it. Manifold and difficult indeed will be the questions brought up for their consideration, and as constitutions are not things to be lengthened or curtailed afterward, our lawgivers will have to be very careful in their measurement, and make a sure fit at once. One of the most warmly discussed questions will probably be that of the Judiciary—the one party maintaining that anything but a Judiciary elected by the people is anti-democratic, &c.; the other party so strongly maintaining that it is all but impossibility for a Judge elected by the people to honestly fulfill his duties.

ARMY MOVEMENTS.

We had scarcely known of Gen. BANKS' departure from New-Orleans, as I mentioned in my last, before we heard of his safe arrival at Alexandria, so rapid was his movement. From that time to this we have been on the tip-toe of expectation respecting some grand collision between our forces and those of the enemy, but nothing has yet come to relieve our suspense. This morning, indeed, (the first of April,) the Era brought out its stereotyped great gun, and told us in great big letters, of a tremendous fight at Cane River, in which 10,000 Federal troops had met 14,000 rebels, routed them and taken 600 prisoners, &c., &c. The True Delta also came out with the same story; but as it was modestly accompanied by the following disclaimer, of course we cannot easily gulp it down just yet, however tempting and savory the morsel:

"The above news was received and issued by us in an extra this morning. Upon inquiring at headquarters for further news, we learned that none whatever had been received. We see no cause to doubt its correctness, save that this is the 1st of April. We would not advise any cotton speculators to be influenced by it one way or the other. It may or may not be true. We believe it, but would not bet a postage stamp upon it."

All I can say is that I believe and hope that if this rumor is not true just now, something quite as exhilarating will have to be recorded before many days pass over us; for I know that this time our army has taken the field in earnest.

THE WEATHER

continues abominably undecided; cold one day—warm the next—blustering and rainy the ——after, and so on, till one does not know whether to ——dorth only two squeezes off with or without his overcoat. If rain be hammer when he starts, and Winter before he gets back. The health of the place continues excellent, as usual; and, indeed, to hear anything about the sickly character of New-Orleans one must go to the North to learn it, for the people here evidently have no thought whatever about such a thing.

NEMO.

NEW-ORLEANS ACCOUNTS.

From the Picayune, April 1.

We learn from the steamer Illinois, which arrived this morning, that a big battle was fought on Monday last, by the United States forces under Gen. A. J. SMITH and a rebel force 10,000 strong, near the mouth of Cane River. The fight lasted two hours and forty minutes, in which DUDLEY's cavalry is reported to have greatly distinguished themselves. Our loss was 50 killed and wounded. That of the enemy was heavy, the prisoners taken being 600.

Since the above was written, we have the same confirmed by the arrival of the United States transport Alice Vivian, from Alexandria, which left that town yesterday morning.

Our forces are in hot pursuit, LEE's cavalry following the enemy rapidly and picking up stragglers. Col. DUDLEY's brigade took a short rest after the fight and immediately resumed the advance.

From the Era, April 1.

The Union forces consisted of 8,000 infantry, belonging to the Seventeenth Army Corps, under Gen. MOWER, and DUDLEY's Brigade of Gen. LEE's Cavalry Corps—the whole under the command of Gen. A. J. SMITH.

On the 28th ult., this force encountered the rebels under DICK TAYLOR, estimated at 12,000 strong, posted in an advantageous position on Cane River, some thirty-five miles above Alexandria, and a fight ensued of nearly three hours' duration.

The infantry thrown out as skirmishers did the greater part of the fighting, and inflicted quite a heavy loss upon the enemy, who were concentrated to resist an anticipated assault from our whole force.

After the position of the enemy had been well ascertained, a general advance was ordered by SMITH, and made with a cheer. The rebels wavered at this demonstration, and, after a few volleys, began to retreat.

The rebels fell back in very good order, and the nature of the ground was such as to prevent a coup de main by our troops, and an opportunity offered.

After the retreat began, the cavalry brigade of Gen. DUDLEY made a gallant charge on the enemy's flank. The columns was crossing an open field, when the troopers swooped down upon it like a hawk upon its prey, and captured over three hundred prisoners. The confusion created by this charge was such as to disorganize a portion of the rebel force, and a number of additional prisoners were afterward taken as stragglers.

Our whole loss is said to be but 18 killed and about 60 wounded, most of them slightly, while that of the enemy is known to be much greater. It is estimated by some as high as 200 killed and wounded, and we captured over 500 prisoners, and others were yet being brought in, in squads of twos, threes, and half dozens.

Our troops did not halt at the battle-ground, but pushed on. DUDLEY and his cavalry in the advance, and it was supposed no rest would be given the enemy. It was given the enemy. It was the design of Gen. SMITH to force the rebels to make a stand, and to defeat them in a pitched battle, if possible. This would tend to disorganize the rebel army among which considerable dissatisfaction now exists.

A goodly number of deserters have entered the Union lines, and profess to be heartily tired of the rebellion. They are placed under guard for the present, in order to prevent the carrying of information to the enemy, should any of them have given themselves up with the intention of acting as spies.

LOSS OF THE STEAMER J. H. RUSSELL.

FOUR LIVES LOST.

From the New-Orleans Delta, March 30.

The J. H. Russell was on her way to this city from Vicksburgh, with a large cargo, principally cotton, on board, and quite a large passenger list. She stopped at Plaquemine on the 27th, for a short time, and about 9 P. M., almost immediately after leaving that place, by some unexplained means, fire was communicated to the boat from one of the blazing torches which are always used on our river boats when approaching or leaving landings.

In a moment, as it appeared, the boat was enveloped in flames, and the inflammable character of her loading precluded the least possibility of saving her. Her pilot, with commendable presence of mind, instantly upon discovering the fact headed her for the shore, and, as she grounded bow on, the majority of her crew and passengers made their escape to the shore; direct from the boat some however were cut off from that means of escape, and were obliged to throw themselves into the river and swim for the shore.

In assisting these latter to a place of safety, Messrs. DANIELS, RANDOLPH and others rendered valuable and praiseworthy aid, in doing which Mr. DANIELS was severely burned in the head and arms.

It is impossible to ascertain precisely how many unfortunates perished by the sad disaster, but the following are known to have been lost: A Catholic priest, name unknown; a gentleman whose child was saved, and which is now on the gunboat stationed at Plaquemine; a private of a cavalry regiment, and a negress belonging to the boat. It is presumed there are others, but the fact cannot be definitely established.

We have received the following list of the saved, which, of course, is not full:

J. Farrell, H. Rigley, A. Johnson, wife and two children, M. Marshall, F. Bonnet and two friends, Auger, E. Meguerz, R. Randolph, N. Block, W. Kranz, H. Meyer, M. Block, R. Colbett, W. Lee, J. Britton, S. Boyd, O. K. Vining and wife, C. J. McLellan, L. Hodges, J. C. Hobert, A. Kransenz, Miss J. Laughlin, J. Mitchell and wife.

Beside the large load of cotton, consisting of 700 bales and 1,200 sacks, the Russell had, as freight, a number of mules, cattle, sheep and hogs, all of which perished in the flames or were drowned.

The passengers, with but two exceptions, lost everything but the clothes they were in. The freight and treasure of the Adams' Express Company was also entirely destroyed.

The citizens of Plaquemine and surrounding country paid every attention to the wants of the sufferers, and received the thanks of all for their prompt and energetic action. Steamed immediately on the Gertrude for this city, but the majority arrived last night on the General Banks.

The crew of the gunboat (her name we regret not receiving,) rendered efficient service, and the colored regiment stationed at Plaquemine was formed in line and employed in drenching the magazine situated on the bank in dangerous proximity to the burning boat, thus probably saving the town itself from destruction.

The excitement was not a little increased by the firing on our pickets from a band of guerrillas during the time the danger was at its height. They were, however, quickly dispersed through the vigilance of the commanding officers of the post.

We hear different statements regarding the application on board the Russell for the extinguishment of the fire, one party affirming that there were but two buckets to be had, and no hose attached to the engine, while another declares exactly the contrary. As an investigation will undoubtedly take place in the matter, we leave the facts to be elicited at that time.

There was no insurance on either boat or cargo.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Thursday, April 7.

Arrived ship Shakespeare, from New-York.

Sailed ships Mary Robinson, for Howland Island, Galata, for Manilla.

Business shows symptoms of revival since the recent numerous arrivals of ships.

The British and California Banking Company, with a capital stock of two million pounds sterling, advertises its intention of establishing a bank at San Francisco. It is believed that the new institution will exercise an important influence over the exchange market.

SAN FRANCISCO, Saturday, April 9.

Arrived, steamer Golden City from Panama.

A moderate business has been done during the week, more disposition being shown at the close to increase stocks. There is plenty of sugar and leading staples.

RUDIE GRAHMOUN, one of the Chapman privateersmen who recently took the oath of allegiance and was released under the President's Proclamation of Amnesty, has been rearrested on the charge of violating the terms of his parole and oath. He swore fidelity to the Union at St. Louis in 1861, and again at Louisville in 1862. It is understood that he will be sent to Washington for military trial.

Fire at Harrisburgh, Ky.

LOUISVILLE, Sunday, April 10.

A fire occurred at Harrisburgh, Ky., Friday evening, in the storehouse of A. S. ROBERSON. It is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary. The fire consumed thirteen buildings in the business portion of the place. Ex-Gov. MAGOFFIN and Dr. SHARKEY were among the principal sufferers. The aggregate loss was about $60,000.

Sale of the Prize "Pet."

BOSTON, Saturday, April 9.

The prize steamer Pet, captured off Wilmington, was sold at auction to-day for $35,500.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE N. Y. TIMES.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, April 10.

THE EXPULSION OF LONG AND HARRIS.

The vote on the resolution to expel HARRIS is regarded as settling the question of the impossibility of expelling LONG. He will, however, be severely censured; and COLFAX's resolution to expel him will probably be passed to a vote, for the sake of forcing the opposition to go on record. On a vote to censure HARRIS, Saturday, no less than twenty-nine of them dodged. Among these were such men as VOORHEES, CRAVENS, ROLLINS and BRUTUS CLAY. The usual course has been for a member thus censured to resign, and go before his constituents. But HARRIS is understood to have said that he'll be —— if he'll resign, no matter how much they censure him. The consideration of LONG's case was only postponed till to-morrow, in order to get his printed speech; but the Globe is so far behind that it will not appear till Tuesday. There is a possibility, therefore, that the matter may be further postponed.

WHAT THE REBELS ARE DOING.

Information received here to-day is to the effect that the rebels are busily engaged in strengthening their fortifications on the line of the Rapidan and along the Orange and Alexandria Railroad, between Rapidan Station and Orange Court-house. Lee is daily receiving large accessions to his army. It is said that the rebels are building fortifications at convenient points between the Orange and Alexandria Railroad and Fredericksburgh Railroad. The rebel cavalry is being reorganized and reinforced by mounted infantry.

THE REVENUE BILL.

Owing to the illness of Mr. SPRAGUE, the Revenue Bill will not be reported by the Ways and Means Committee until Tuesday. All the provisions of the bill have been agreed upon in committee, except that relating to distilled spirits. The Secretary of the Treasury is urgent in his recommendation for the immediate imposition of a permanent tax to take effect after July 1. Members of the committee are about equally divided between the Secretary's proposition and a graduating scale of one dollar after July, and one dollar and a quarter after January. The matter will be decided to-morrow. A tax of one dollar and fifteen cents is pretty certain.

THE MEXICAN QUESTION IN THE SENATE.

The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations in the matter of the House resolution in regard to Mexico has decided not to take any definite action until the views of the Government are fully ascertained. Secretary SEWARD, it is known, has heretofore opposed any Congressional action in regard to our foreign relations, but the large vote which the resolution received in the House may have changed his views.

CHANGE IN CAVALRY COMMANDS.

Brig.-Gen. WILSON, Chief of the Cavalry Bureau in the War Department, has been relieved at the request of Gen. GRANT, who desires his services as commander of the First Cavalry Division, Army of the Potomac. Col. HUZZY, Sixth Ohio Cavalry, succeeds him in command of the Cavalry Bureau.

THE EFFECTS OF RECENT RAINS.

Recent rain has caused considerable damage along the line of the Orange and Alexandria Railroad. Several culverts and bridges were damaged yesterday, interfering for a time with the moving of trains. The bridges across Bull Run, Cedar Run, Broad Run, and Kettle Run, are all more or less injured.

A DESERTER SENT TO FORT LAFAYETTE.

HASKIL MAGRUDER, a wealthy planter, of Prince George's County, Md., has been sentenced by the Military Commission to one year's imprisonment in Fort Lafayette, for harboring rebel spies.

RESIGNED.

Lieut.-Col. HALPINE has tendered his resignation to the War Department in consequence of ill health.

DISPATCHES TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, April 10.

THE GOODYEAR PATENT.

Remonstrances from many of the leading railroad corporations of the country were presented to the House of Representatives, yesterday, against the extension of the Goodyear patent.

POLITICAL CLUBS IN WASHINGTON.

Various political clubs have been organized in Washington, and among those most recently formed is the Ohio Union Club, with Solicitor JORDAN as President. The Society is devoted to the support of the future nominee of the Baltimore Convention.

THE NAVY REGISTER FOR 1864.

The official Navy Register for 1864 has just been issued from the Government press. It reports the number of vessels, including those still building, to be 517; among them 72 ironclads and two rams, the Avenger and Vindicator. From December 31, 1862, to March 6, 1864, the navy have lost 39 vessels by capture, distruction, snagging, wreck, &c., including six ironclads, and three rams.

AFFAIRS IN THE ARMY.

A letter from the Army of the Potomac says Gens. MEADE, HUMPHREYS, INGALLS and PATRICK visited Lieut.-Gen. GRANT at Culpepper on Friday.

The army has been considerably strengthened, and the men are anxious for active operations.

Much complaint is daily heard in consequence of the loss of letters by the present mail arrangements.

Of four privates recently found guilty of desertion, one is to be shot and the others are to forfeit pay and allowances due, and be sent to the Dry Tortugas.

A corporal, for stealing $20 from a prisoner of war while under his charge, is sentenced to a similar punishment.

THE UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

During the present week the United States Supreme Court will take up the case of CHARLES HOSMER et al. vs. ARTHUR W. AUSTIN, from the Circuit Court of Massachusetts. This case will be followed by that of JOSEPH JAMES et al., plaintiffs in error, &c., vs. JAMES S. WHITNEY, Collector, from the same court. These cases will be the last for argument during the present term, as the court will adjourn on Monday, the 18th inst.

The Twenty-ninth Massachusetts Regiment.

BOSTON, Sunday, April 10.

The Massachusetts Twenty-ninth Regiment, Col. E. M. PRINCE, which arrived at Boston last night, on furlough, will have a grand public reception to-morrow. This regiment won a gallant record in most of the great battles in Virginia, and subsequently at the capture of Vicksburgh, forming the advance on Jackson, Mississippi. They have also seen hard service in Tennessee and Kentucky.

A cold east wind has prevailed to-day, with squalls of snow and rain.

From Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Saturday, April 9.

At a meeting of the Philadelphia Typographical Union, held this evening, Messrs. Wm. A. McEwan and Wm. L. Fatscher were elected delegates to represent that body in the National Convention of Printers to be held in Louisville on the first Monday in May.

Sailing of the North American.

PORTLAND, Me., Saturday, April 9.

The steamship North American sailed at 5 P. M. for Londonderry and Liverpool.

Severe Storm South.

BALTIMORE, Sunday, April 10.

The storm last night was the severest of years past. Considerable damage was done in the city by the flooding of cellars, undermining of new buildings, &c. The Falls are very high, and overflow in many places. It is reported that several buildings have been destroyed on the Susquehanna. No particulars are received.

From Cairo.

CAIRO, Ill., Saturday, April 9.

The steamer Darling, from Memphis, passed up with 111 bales of cotton, 33 of which go off at Evansville.

The steamer Hillman, from Memphis for St. Louis, passed up with 210 bales of cotton.

The Second Iowa, the Sixth Illinois, and a portion of the Third Illinois Cavalry (Veterans) arrived up from below to-day, en route for home.

Detachments of regiments, together with large numbers of horses, mules and wagons, of the Seventeenth Army Corps have arrived from below. As to the time they will remain nothing definite is known.

From St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Sunday, April 10.

A dispatch from Provost-Marshal-General GRY to Provost-Marshal ALEXANDER, of this State, says Lieut.-Gen. GRANT directs active measures to be immediately taken to get into the field all recruits of the new organization and the old troops of Missouri. The troops will rendezvous at Louisville.

Gen. SHERMAN, in a dispatch to the Governor of Missouri on the same subject, says the War Department has given him the control of all the veterans now absent, and requests him to have them sent to the front immediately upon the expiration of their furloughs. No excuse will be taken for delay, and commanders of regiments will be held to a strict accountability for absence of a single day. Gen. SHERMAN says now is the time, if ever, when the soldier should be in his place, three hundred men on time being better than a thousand too late.

All regiments belonging to the armies of the Ohio and Cumberland go to Nashville, and those of the Army of Tennessee go to Cairo, where they will receive further orders.

The St. Louis Presbyterians decided, at a late meeting, that the Rev. Dr. MCPHEETERS could not be allowed to continue his ministerial labors at the Price-street Presbyterian Church, in this city. Dr. MCPHEETERS was banished from this department for disloyalty some time since, but the order of banishment was revoked by the President.

From Memphis.

CAIRO, Sunday, April 10.

The steamer Silver Moon has arrived with one day's later news from Memphis.

The alarm lately experienced in that city was subsiding. Preparation, however, were making to receive the enemy, should he return.

The rebels, under McCULLOCH, are reported concentrating in force at Augusta, on White River, 100 miles above Bell's Bluff. They had driven out the small garrison on duty there, compelling them to retire in the gunboats. Measures were immediately taken to fortify Duvall's Bluff.

MR. LONG'S SPEECH.

The following is the concluding portion of this speech, which sums up all that was obnoxious in it:

"The very idea upon which the war is founded—coercion of States, leads to despotism; to preserve a Republican form of Government under any Constitution, under the prevalence of the doctrine now in vogue, is clearly impossible. These assertions of the complete overthrow of our Government are as unwholesome and unpleasant to me as they are to any member of the House. Would to God the facts were such I could chuckle other convictions. I may be denounced as disloyal and unpatriotic for entertaining them, but it will only be by shallow fools and arrant knaves who do not know or will not admit the difference between recognizing a fact and creating its existence. A man may not desire to die, but nevertheless his belief will not alter the fact of his mortality. I shall not, in these remarks, revive the displeasant and acrimonious controversy of who is responsible for the death and destruction of our Republic. I do not see that any such discussion now would be productive of good. I entertain clear and decided convictions upon that point—convictions that I have no doubt will be shared by the impartial historian of the future. For the present I am willing to let the past, with all its recollections, rest, provided we can snatch from the common ruin some of our old relics of freedom. I do not share in the belief entertained by many of my political friends, on this floor and elsewhere, that any peace is attainable upon the basis of union and reconstruction. If the Democratic party were in power to-day, I have no idea, and however compatible we feel ourselves to be, that we could restore the Union of the thirty-four States. My mind has undergone an entire change upon that subject. I believe that there are but two alternatives, and these are: either an acknowledgment of the independence of the South as an independent nation, or their complete subjugation and extermination as a people; and of these alternatives I prefer the former.

Mr. Coalman, I take little or no interest in the discussion of the question which many of my political friends would make an issue as to how this war shall be prosecuted, its manner and object. I regard that as worse than trifling with the great question. I do not believe there can be any prosecution of the war against a sovereign State under the Constitution, and I do not believe that a war so carried on can be maintained as an honorable or as a respectable, justifiable or expedient. An unconstitutional war can only be carried on in an unconstitutional manner, and to prosecute it further under the idea of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, (Mr. STEVENS,) as a war waged against the Confederate States as an independent nation, for the purpose of conquest and subjugation, as he proposes, and the Administration is in truth and in fact doing, I am equally opposed.

I will say further, Mr. Chairman, that if this war is to be still further prosecuted, I prefer that it shall be done under the auspices of those who now conduct its management, as I do not wish the party with which I am connected to be in any degree responsible for its results, which cannot be otherwise than disastrous and calculated—let the responsibility remain where it is until we can have a change of policy instead of men, if such a thing is possible. Nothing could be more fatal for the Democratic party than to seek to come into power pledged to a continuance of a war policy—such a policy would be a libel upon its creed in the past and the ideas that lie at the basis of all free Governments, and would lead to its complete demoralization and ruin.

I believe the masses of the Democratic party are for peace, that they would be placed in a false position if they should nominate a war candidate for the Presidency and seek to make the issue upon the narrow basis of how the war should be prosecuted. For my own part, as I have already indicated, I fear that our old Government cannot be preserved even under the best auspices, and under any policy that may be now adopted; yet I desire to see the Democratic party with which I have always been connected, preserve its consistency and republican character unshaken."

The Storm of Yesterday.

Yesterday was the eighteenth successive day that the wind has blown from the eastward—from E. N. E. to E. S. E.—except on Friday, when it shifted to the southwest for a couple of hours, then to the northwest, and then settled back in the old quarter. The number of arrivals during this period have been very few. A very large number are due from European and Southern ports.

The steamships Morning Star and Roanoke from Havana, arrived yesterday, and report a gale outside the Hook from about east-northeast. There being no sailing vessels from below, and as the telegraph line to Sandy Hook is not in working order, the usual return in the most wonderful way now, without information as to what inward-bound vessels, if any, may be in the lower bay, at anchor. Some anxiety is expressed for the safety of the pilot boat James M. Waterbury, as she was last seen on the 1st instant, with but one pilot remaining, the rest having arrived with vessels. The tides have been very full, filling all the cellars so far from the rivers as Water and Greenwich streets.

The Delaware and other Southern harbors are filled with vessels bound to Northern ports, and the various anchorages on Long Island sound, also contain large fleets bound to the eastward.

DELEGATES TO THE NATIONAL TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION.—At a meeting of the New-York Typographical Union No. 6, held at Tammany Hall on Saturday evening, 9th inst., Messrs. CHARLES E. GUNN, of the Tribune, and JAMES GRIFFITH, of Messrs. Geo. F. NESBITT & Co's printing house, were elected delegates to attend the meeting of the National Typographical Union, to be held at Louisville, Ky., in May next.

FROM MEXICO AND ST. DOMINGO.

News from St. Domingo—Guayamo, Monte Plata, &c., Abandoned by the Spaniards—Reinforcements Sent to Santana—Prizes Adjudged by the Marine Court—Accounts from Matamoras—Indignation at the Conduct of Vidaurri.

From Our Own Correspondent.

HAVANA, Saturday, April 2, 1864.

Notwithstanding the well-known deadly character of a West Indian Summer to unacclimated Europeans, it appears that the war in St. Domingo is to be carried on, although the Spaniards will have a more fatal enemy to contend with in the climate than even in the Dominican insurgents. The first battalion of marines, who have been doing duty on shore for some time past, from the paucity of regular troops, left to-day by the railroad for Matanzas, to embark on board the war steamer Velasco, which will take them to Santiago de Cuba.

The merchant steamer Cubano arrived the other day from St. Domingo with 500 sick soldiers. The whole number of sick and wounded of the Spanish army in St. Domingo is estimated at nine thousand; but those deemed in good health are in not much better condition. The St. Domingo papers give a heart-rending account of the deplorable condition of the troops that landed lately from Cuba, where the unhealthiness of the climate had reduced the ranks to mere shadows, from the effects of fever and insufficient nourishment. The want of provisions is extensively felt among the soldiers, for, from the nature of the country, the ward of roads, and the difficulty of mules for transport, it is almost impossible to carry provisions any distance from the sea coast.

It appears to be the intention to concentrate the troops, for in addition to Guayamo, Barahona and many other places have been left; at the capital (St. Domingo,) several forts are being erected, besides barracks for the troops.

We have not heard here lately of any battles between the Government forces and the insurgents. The only affair of which we have any account is a recent with the Dominicans, who tried by means of an ambush to get possession of a convoy of provisions that was being sent to Monte Plata, but it seems the they were not successful. Since then Monte Plata has been also abandoned by the Spaniards as unhealthy.

The efforts of the Government, it is expected, will be directed against Monte Christi, and of which invasion the Dominicans are well aware, having taken precautions to strengthen the threatened point. The Spanish Government have sent reinforcements, it is said, to Gen. SANTANA, to protect the districts of Seybo, Hato Mayor, Higuey, Quiabon and Macorris, in case the insurgents should make an attempt in that direction, (namely, of the district of Seybo,) or in that of the more eastern part of the province of St. Domingo.

The Spanish troops that were encamped at Monte Plata have been quartered at San Antonio de Guaya, under the command of Gen. SUERO, who is in charge of the pacification of the line as far as Lamas, which he acts in conjunction with Gen. SANTANA.

By this arrangement, daylight dawns on thousands of the country from the Rio Ozama, and towns and towns are protected from the enemy's incursions—a matter needed of great importance, as being the parts where cattle are most abundant, the district about San Juan having been exhausted, it is said, by RIGONZONI and his band.

With regard to the death of FIGUEREDO, the insurrectionist who killed him, RENSON, was not commissioned by the Provisional Government to do anything of the sort; on the contrary, as soon as it was known by SALMON, the head of the Provisional Government, he was sent to prevent the assassin, who only escaped by taking refuge in Haytian territory. He has since made overtures to join the Spaniards.

The St. Domingo Gazette of the 19th ult. gives the official news of the capture of Las Matas, near Fort Ozama, in which the dispatch of the commanding officer states that the insurgents were defeated with considerable loss.

The same gazette publishes a long list of promotions and decorations granted by the Queen to officers of the army and navy who have distinguished themselves in recent actions. Promotions among the officers of the Spanish army in St. Domingo have certainly been numerous enough lately in that part of the Spanish dominions.

The Marine Gazette at St. Domingo have declared lawful prizes a Haytian vessel taken by Admiral TY's steamer Ulloa, and an English schooner, the Rosa, captured by another Spanish war steamer, the Africa.

It appears that the officers of the Liberal Mexican army, under command of CORTINAS, at Matamoras, lately held a meeting, at which the treachery of VIDAURRI was denounced. Since then, another meeting, composed of the citizens, was held, at which similar language was used with respect to VIDAURRI, and any attempt on his part to excite public opinion in the State of Tamaulipas, or to induce it to unite it to New-Leon, violently denounced. It was said that CORTINAS' forces had left Matamoras to give him battle.

The boast of the Franco-Mexican papers that VIDAURRI had joined the intervention is rather premature. The papers of Monterey say that VIDAURRI's answer to the proposition of joining the intervention was to the effect that he would require a month's delay, that the State might deliberate and determine whether they would be for peace or war. It is said by the same authority that several towns of New-Leon had risen up in arms; resist any attempt at intervention.

Some of the Havana papers still persist in maintaining that the success of HERRERA's taking Guadalajara is correct, and that the Franco-Mexican papers of the metropolis and other places in the power of the intervention have hooked up the circumstance. As secrecy on this point cannot be preserved for any length of time, we may expect here in Havana in a few days, when the English mail steamer will arrive from Vera Cruz, an authoritative news on this mooted question.

The Public Schools and the Sanitary Commission.

The exhibition by the pupils of the Public Schools of the Seventeenth Ward, in aid of the Sanitary Commission, came off at Cooper Institute on Thursday evening, 7th inst., and was in all respects one of the best that has been given this season. The exercises commenced at 7½ o'clock, and concluded at 11, without the least interruption or mistake, and the audience frequently expressed their pleasure and satisfaction by hearty applause.

The children of these schools are yet to be excelled in their ability to entertain an audience, for during the three hours and a half of the entertainment, their interest was not allowed to flag for a moment. The principal performers were Masters Henry G. Gabay, Arthur Whitaker, Wm. E. Aiken, Philip W. Strouse, John G. Fosmer, Chas. Rhoads, Eugene Rose and George Metcalfe, and Misses Carrie Turner, Hattie Well, M. Louise Snow, Anna McDonald, E. McGrath, Anna M. Corwin, Josie Byrdsall, Margaret Broderick, Adelaide Will, Marie Price, Mary Corn

NEW BOOKS.

WORK AND PLAY; OR, LITERARY VARIETIES. By HORACE BUSHNELL. 12mo. New-York: CHARLES SCRIBNER.

This volume takes its name from the first article of its contents, an oration delivered before the Phi Beta Kappa Society of Harvard University in 1848. It is mainly composed of similar addresses, called for by different public occasions, and now collected together in a shape that secures their preservation, in obedience to the frequent calls that continued to be made for them in the original fugitive form. We are not surprised at this steady demand for these papers, for it may safely be relied on for new spirit and force of old topics, Dr. BUSHNELL is the man. He may be regarded as a man of letters, first among the class that is most typical of the American mind, in the highest stage of development. The light of his clear, fresh and vigorous intellect diffuses itself over every subject he touches. He could not if he would take a common place view of any question presented to him. Robust analogies become near and obvious, consequences undreamed of before, now seem to be inevitable, and a wider range of thought opens out to the reader, while under the influence of a style always earnest and animated, and often rising to true eloquence that interfere without a shadow the bright and simply defined transcript of the author. If any one wishes to see the variety a man of genius can evolve from what is generally called a close-cut theme, let him compare "The Founders, Great in their Weakness," as delivered before the New-England Society, with his reflections of the most platitudinous kind about the Pilgrim Fathers, and it is impossible to avoid being struck with the difference. Like people behind the times, he discusses in a manner the peculiarity that what they sought was political liberty and general freedom to worship God. He is not afraid to over their friends and benefactors inadvertently, their perfect identification of the Church and the State as a joint power having dominion over the bodies and souls of men, and the utter disinclination for anything like democratic principles in their whole theory of life and its relations to mankind. Accepting in their extent almost these facts, Dr. BUSHNELL eloquently shows how much we will have that, because the end of the Pilgrim movement "was religion, simply, and only religion" but a religion that required the cultivation of intellect—a personal matter that commanded of every one the independent exercise of thought and reflection; and that the true paternity and being of our institutions must be sought in

"First of all, on the fixed relation between freedom and intelligence, and the remarkable case, they (the Pilgrim Fathers) had of popular education. It was not their plan to raise up a body of Republicans; but they believed in man as God. Their religion was the choice of mind. The Gospel they preached must have minds to hear it, and hence the school came they had, even from the first day of their settlement, of the education of every child, and as God intended, of all children, whom they found in the pillars in the world called out also to be men of mind and both of power. They grew up into magistrates, lawmen of the people, masters of right and law, Statesmen, Generals, and signers of declarations for liberty. Such a mass of capacity had never been seen before in so small a body of men. And this is the first condition of liberty—the consolidation of power, the compact, impenetrable matter of much manhood; the concentrated energy of good sense and public reason, having power to see before and after, and measure action by counsel. Talk it is that wails about the strength and liberty of a people. To be free is not to be abroad as the owls of the night when they take the freedom of the air, but it is to settle, and, and be strong—a commonwealth as much better compounded on the bones of reason, as it casts off more of the restraints of force."

Other influences, all working unconsciously to the same purpose, are eloquently discussed, as the mutual confidence between the people and their rulers, the spirit of personal self-government, and the displacement of the sentiment of loyalty by the substitution of the conviction or principle of law—a fundamental condition of our State. The silent growth of centuries, and there is no such but the seed of Puritan discipline out of which they ever were known to grow." This brief indication of merely a few of the views enlarged upon in this eloquent discourse, will show its power and originality. It winds up with a glowing anticipation of the future, when, in the course of God's providence, shall perhaps be seen the true issue of the great hope and toward "zeal" which impelled our fathers in the migration; a magnificent end, to which our political movement are but means. When all kinds of progress, political and spiritual, shall work together in our history, raising the race to its true summit of greatness, felicity and glory, in God and religion, "when Church and State, parted in the crumbling and disintegrating processes of freedom, again coalesce and are interfused in unity, the peace, mild love, and world-wide brotherhood established under moral ideas, and the eternal truths of God's eternal kingdom."

A special value seems to us to belong to all Dr. BUSHNELL's writings about New-England. "Historical Estimate of Connecticut," "Agriculture of the East," "The Age of Homespun," all relate to the same subject, all invest it with the charm that a loving loyalty delights to throw around the object of its allegiance. The natural acuteness and originality of Dr. BUSHNELL's mind appear to great advantage when employed on practical subjects, as "City Plans" and "The Day of Rests," which offer suggestions of the highest value, expounded with a force and vivacity that petals them home to the reader. These qualities characterize the entire volume, and insure its favorable reception among all who like a suggestive book to set them thinking, and do not read merely to pass the time.

TEN ACRES ENOUGH. A Practical Experience, Showing how a very Small Farm may be made to keep a very Large Family, with extensive and profitable Employment for Idle Hands in the Cultivation of the Smaller Fruits. 12mo. New-York: JAMES MILLER.

The promise of the title is well performed in the execution of this excellent little book. There is an air of good sense and simplicity about the author that commences strongly to bind the reader, this story, of his experiment. He has something to tell, and he tells it clearly and without affectation. Though at this present moment he is not likely to meet with many willing listeners—if all enquiries are true—the time may return, when the details here set forth will afford hope and consolation to those who may find themselves in the circumstances with the author. Ten Acres Enough will naturally be compared with another recent book, Mr. Farm at Edgewood, equally good and true in its way, but representing an opposite end of the agricultural scale; one giving the experience of a gentleman farmer who employs wealth derived from other sources in the improvement and embellishment of a favorite site, attached to the owner returns a small interest on the capital expended; the other, a case of that numerous band of patient toilers in city, town and village, who have struggled on from year to year, anxious to break away from the bondage of the desk, the counter or the workshop, to realize in the country even a moderate income, so that it be a sure one." Harassed almost to death, and his business prospects destroyed by the rapid succession of commercial "crises" and "panicdom," the writer in 1860 converted his stock into cash; and after settling up his affairs, found himself, with a wife and six children, in possession of four thousand dollars—the net gain of many years of great laborious care. Half this sum secured him, by good fortune, the possession of a garden farm, within a few miles of Philadelphia, near a railroad that opened to him the markets of that city and of New-York. The raising of fruit and vegetables for these great centres of consumption was the business he devoted himself to, and the energy and success with which it is pursued is the subject matter of the book. The statement of Annual cash profits for the first three years may be given as a specimen of the information conveyed by the work, where each item of outlay and profit is separately enumerated. The result was: First year's net gain, after deducting all expenses, $[illegible]; second year's gain, $1,[illegible] 66; third year's gain, $1,227 92, without reckoning the portion of the family's support derived from the farm. The author says:

"For the six years succeeding I have continued to cultivate the same farm. Summer not supposing stone season has cut down my profits to a low figure, but I have never lost money on the year's business. I buy nothing on credit, and for more than ten years, have had no occasion to give a note. Only once or twice have I had to invest a few hundred dollars at the year's close. My means increase, my family has lived more expensively, though I think not any more comfortably. I lie down peacefully at night, thinking that God has given me more. I rise in the morning with an appetite for labor as keen as that for breakfast. But others can succeed as well as myself. Capital or no capital, the proper industry and determination will certainly be rewarded with success."

In the flush and fever of successful speculation these quiet utterances may comparatively be disregarded; but the author has done well to put them on record, and the book is as creditable to him as the career of intelligent labor, whose cheering results it describes.

COUNSEL AND COMFORT, SPOKEN FROM A CITY PULPIT. By the author of "Recollections of a Country Parish." 12mo. Boston: TICKNOR & FIELDS.

The volumes of Mr. ROYR succeed one another so steadily, and with so much regularity, that it is fair to conclude they are "easy writing," while their general popularity, both in England and America, proclaims them unerringly to be "easy reading." The seventeen discourses contained in this volume were apparently delivered by the author in the course of his ministerial functions. They are marked by the same flow of good sense and facile expression found in all his writings, with a slightly more serious cast of thought, as befits their purpose.

ART NOTES.

The Art Gallery of the Sanitary Fair.

The exhibition of works of art in the spacious gallery of the Sanitary Fair, in Fourteenth-street, is, beyond all comparison, the most extensive, the most choice and the most elegantly arranged that has ever been seen in New-York City. It comprises nearly four hundred oil paintings, including specimens of almost every American artist of note, together with a very large number of the works of distinguished foreign painters, some of which are of great excellence, and which are rarely or never seen away from the galleries of their princely owners. Objects of great pecuniary value, they have been intrusted to the dangerous keeping of the fair, with a sacrificing liberality that deserves the warmest commendations of all lovers of art. The private galleries of the wealthiest collectors of New-York and vicinity have been liberally drawn upon to enrich this collection; and it now stands a superb monument of the art wealth of our metropolis, and a school in which the student at a glance can trace the progress of art in his own country, and compare it with the finest examples of the Old World.

The visitor will be agreeably surprised by the magnificence of this gallery. The recollection of the best exhibitions in this City in past times will not enable him to preconceive the splendors of this. All the pictures hang upon the walls of a single room, of vast dimensions, whose shape is a simple parallelogram. At one glance the whole grand effect is received, and it impresses us with a splendor of effect, such as a visit to all the principal galleries of Europe have failed to produce.

There is room to see the large pictures which hang upon its walls at a distance to which they are entitled, and which has probably never before been accorded to them. In no other gallery in this City could this important advantage be obtained. But the hanging authorities, partly negativing these advantages, have placed the larger pictures so low that they must be seen through the heads of the multitudes that always intervene. But it is a great advance upon the intricate labyrinth of closets and obscure passages of the rooms in which New-Yorkers have hitherto had to traverse in seeing pictures.

Among those who have contributed valuable pictures from their private collections we notice the names of the following distinguished citizens: Marshal O. Roberts, Jonathan Sturges, Mrs. Gideon Lee, Wm. P. Wright, John Hoey, Wm. H. Webb, A. T. Stewart, R. M. Olyphant, Wm. Niblo, Moses Grinnell, and many others.

But to the artists must be awarded the greatest meed of praise for liberality. It is an great sacrifice for wealthy owners of pictures to loan them for a brief period for the benefit of the suffering soldier; but when the selling artists, many of whom have but a hard struggle for humble existence, contribute as free gifts, as they have done for this fair, sometimes several paintings, which represent often many days exhaustive work, we must award them a degree of commendation far above the ostentatious sacrifices of wealth by purchasers. They have been called upon, and have liberally contributed their best works for the Boston, the Brooklyn and the New-York and several other Sanitary Fairs. Their liberality is thus seen to be very conspicuous.

To this collection owners have loaned 132 paintings—the artists have given 267.

As the visitor advances down the gallery amid the splendid array he will detect many a gem that has charmed his earlier days. Everywhere his eye will encounter objects worthy of his regard, and he may spend weeks without exhausting the treasures of the month collection. There are many pictures here which have had prosperous careers of popular admiration, and many which have been famous in their day as gems of former annual exhibitions. Some once celebrated will now scarcely pass critical muster, and others hold their merited supremacy. Several have world-wide reputations, and are valued at many thousand dollars. The whole collection cannot be worth less than five or six hundred thousand dollars.

Among the gifts we notice many very charming specimens of recent painting. HUNTINGTON, who is ever fresh and ever successfully traveling new fields, has sent in a most lovely Venetian scene—a view of the grand old Church St. Marie Della Salute, on the Grand Canal, with the sun rising over the distant Adriatic. It is painted in the misty, half-obscure, but most luminous and brilliant manner of TURNER, who did so much toward interpreting the romantic beauties of old Venice. Mr. HUNTINGTON has made a most beautiful picture; indeed, the only Venetian scene in the collection, and there are many, which is worthy of the subject.

LANZEE has a large picture representing a triumphal return of a naval expedition to Venice. People crowd the Ducal Palace and St. Mark's square, to welcome the returning barges. It is painted with all the picturesque power of this artist, but is painfully Chinese in effect. The over-loaded boats, with figures that would sink them, is peculiarly like Chinese art. The architecture is real, though not very Venetian in spirit.

There are two pictures, hanging on opposite walls, facing each other, which have made considerable noise in the American art world. We are thankful to have a chance to see them thus face to face. They are the "Rocky Mountains," by BIERSTADT, and the "Heart of the Andes," by CHURCH.

The observer cannot fail to discern how closely they resemble each other in general effect as well as in handling and color, and other details. Neither of them look so well here as when seen by themselves and surrounded by all the appliances of the skillful picture-hanger. They are beautiful pictures, and well deserve the stand they have taken as pioneers in the advancing stride of American art. But they are now in company that painfully tries their merits. Perhaps they would retain their reputation better if they had not intruded into the presence of so much splendid art on every where surrounds them.

The famous painting by LEUTZE of WASHINGTON crossing the Delaware, hangs at the end of the hall in a splendid position—WASHINGTON with the head and air of a thinking master, stands upon the prow of the boat ready to inter enemy and dance a pirouet on the snow. It is not the poetic WASHINGTON of the American people. And as for the rest, in such a subject, who cares for the look of the ice, how really they are painted, or how picturesque and how romantically they are arranged. They are well done—but the here is a dreadful failure. It is a very fine specimen of the art of picture making as practiced in Germany.

DUSSAUX, of whom works we see too little of late, is represented in this collection by several of his best works. They loom up grandly amidst the recent multitude of overstrained works, notwithstanding their modest and unpretending style, and they firmly assert their overwhelming excellence.

And COLE, too—how shall we thank those who have so kindly sent here these splendid works of this great master, so superb in their radiant skies of cerulean purity, and their wealth of resplendent tone and color.

So many of the better pictures of the American school are to be seen here that the collection is almost entitled to be called a historical gallery. It would have indeed been a rare chance for a review exhibition. Works by all the old and departed artists might have been obtained, and thus we should have had a chance to compare them with recent works. But, as it is, we have in the catalogue the names of BENJAMIN WEST, GILBERT STUART, COLE and others from the past, and a host of pictures by artists whose early works are so old, as, in the hurry of this new world, to be called historical.

There will be found, and they are as important as any, no matter how large, half smothered in the overgrown crowd, a large number of very small paintings, by distinguished European artists, of great merit and rarity. One, not much bigger than the palm of the hand, by MEISSONIER, called the "Trooper," a picture of unexampled finish, has been recently sold for $3,000. It should be attentively observed. There are several here by FRANK and other French painters of equal merit and price, but of most exquisite beauty. GIFFORD'S "Indian Summer," so full of American Autumn splendor will gladden all eyes. The visitor should not fail to search for GROSS'S "Egyptian Records," the great sensation of one of our late picture seasons; for ANGELICO'S "Mediterranean Coast Scenes;" for COLE'S "Italy;" for HUNTINGTON'S "Shepherd Boy;" for FRANK'S "Fisher Boy;" for THORNE'S "Cattle;" for CASTNER'S "Tournament," in his old and best manner; for that rare and curious work by REINICK, the "Game of Life;" for BRIANT'S great portrait of "WASHINGTON;" for MOORE'S famous "Power of Music;" for the "Silence," by BAKER; for HAVILAND'S "Merry Wives of Windsor;" for the "Prayer," by HUNTER, and for a hundred other gems of the best art of our day, and of their kind, of any day, as to that. They are almost rare and beautiful works, and will probably never again be open to the inspection of the public eye.

We have noticed only a small portion of the pictures. We have omitted many as deserving of remembrance as those we have designated, but the visitor will find them, for all that, and be rewarded for his pains.

MONETARY AFFAIRS.

SECOND BOARD.

PUBLIC BOARD—1 P. M.

EVENING SECOND BOARD.

MONDAY, April 11—5 P. M.

In the Foreign Trade at this port last week the Export clearances improved in value of Domestic Produce, but were again very light in Specie. The Import entries are to a fair average, but largely below the previous heavy week. The Customs Duties continue large, and while the Treasury Office sold over two millions in Gold to the Importers, to accommodate the Customs demand, it still holds $28,266,181 in Gold and Silver, as against $26,496,549 at the close of the previous week. We believe that arrangements are contemplated at the Department in Washington to commence the payment of the May interest on the $500,000,000 Loan as early as 15th inst. The labor at the New-York office will probably be divided as between the full and fractional coupons, devoting a week or fortnight to each alternately.

The subscriptions to the new Popular Loan are on the increase, and now average at all points considerably over a million a day. The European demand for the 5-20s and other orders for these and the older 6 per cents, have imparted increased firmness at the Stock Exchange and on the Street, and advanced prices 1@2 per cent. The Railway speculation, with one or two special exceptions, closed somewhat dull on Saturday, after another active week at high prices. The erratic movements in Fort Wayne and Harlem constitute the feature of the week. The latter had the advantage on Saturday, and sold at 176 per cent., as against 161 per cent. about a fortnight ago. Both Stocks have their separate engineer-in-chief, with all steam on, but exciting no other interest in the public at large than the sense of wonder as to where these trains of speculation, running at such a giddy speed, will ultimately land. The Mining speculation, and the constant multiplication of new schemes to enhance it, divert a large share of attention (and "margins") from the Railways, while the snug condition of the Money Market, so far as Stock Exchange borrowers are concerned, creates an occasional pause in both.

COURSE OF THE STOCK EXCHANGE FOR THE WEEK.

American Gold Coin	165¾	@170¾

The new subscriptions in this market to the 10-40 years' Loan reported on Saturday, were over a million of dollars, viz.:

At Treasury Office	$[illegible]
First National Bank	410,000
Twelfth National Bank	300,000
National Exchange Bank	100,000
Together	$1,044,400

The sales of Gold to the Importers from the Treasury Office Saturday, at 165 ⅌ cent., amount to $414,000; making for the week $2,277,000. The Customs for the day are $379,000, making for the week $2,169,000. The shipments of Gold and Silver of all descriptions for the week are $345,471. The price of Gold at the Stock Exchange Board Saturday was 169¾, about the same as on Friday. In the afternoon an advance was reported in the Gold Room, but the transactions of the day, in the absence of both Customs and Export demand, were unimportant in amount.

The Money market was again very active among the Stock Brokers, at 7 ⅌ cent.

At the Stock Exchange, the market was very strong for the Government 5-20 year Loan at both Boards, and firm in the forenoon on the Railway speculation. The latter, however, was somewhat feverish, later in the day, and the Second Board sales not up to first prices by 1 ⅌ cent. The fluctuations on Fort Wayne, through the day, were about 15 ⅌ cent. Among the Mining Stocks, Quartz Hill recovered part of the heavy decline of yesterday, and Gregory Gold advanced to 35 ⅌ cent. There was not much business in other descriptions.

At 4 o'clock the following prices were made in comparison with Friday night. There was nothing done in Gold at the Afternoon Board of the Stock Exchange:

The United States Texas Indemnity 5 ⅌ cents, due on 1st January next, commands at present nearly the price of Gold, in which medium the principal will be paid off. A merchant friend who invested $16,000 in this Stock at par a few years ago, sold out on Friday at 100 ⅌ cent. and subscribed to the new 5 ⅌ cent. Gold bearing Loan to the extent of $22,400 with the proceeds.

The day's business at the Office of the Assistant Treasurer of the United States at New-York was as follows: Total receipts, $6,170,834 29; for Customs, $378,000; total payments, $6,454,236 85; Ten-forty Loan, $324,500; total balance, $27,959,224 79.

Subscriptions to the Mexican Pacific Mining Company have been opened at the office of Messrs. LIVERMORE, CLEWS & Co., No. 32 Wall-street; shares $25, of which $10 is payable at time of subscription and remainder on 2d May.

The Import Entries of the past week amount to $3,746,545, against $2,718,771 same week last season. The Export clearances of Domestic Produce amount to $3,706,748, against $2,474,375 same week in 1863. The Export of Specie is $346,000, against $607,000 same week last year. The Customs for the week are $2,169,000.

The Commercial Tables of the Foreign Trade at New-York, which we published a few weeks since, for eight months of the current Fiscal Year, give a total Import of Foreign Merchandise, (exclusive of Specie,) from 1st July, 1863, to 29th February, 1864, of $130,540,000
Add six weeks since March 1 31,851,175
Total to date $162,391,175

The March traffic was $157,961, against $92,483, same month last year.

The receipts of Cotton at this port the past week were 6,206 bales, and the export clearances 1,262 bales. The stock on hand continues to accumulate, and further considerable shipments to Liverpool are anticipated.

Fourth National Bank Difficulty.

To the Stockholders of the Fourth National Bank:

Certain stockholders of the Fourth National Bank of the City of New-York have undertaken to call a stockholders' meeting, to be held on the 14th April, instant, and it would seem from the call that the movers of the project contemplate an attempt at very radical and sweeping changes in the articles of association, or failing the attempt to obtain such changes as shall suit their plans, an entire breaking up of the corporation.

The original and now existing articles of Association were examinionsly approved when made, are in entire conformity with the Act of Congress, and with the ordinary usages of such institutions, neither containing any unusual nor lacking any customary provision. Under them, as under the law itself, the responsible management and control of the corporation is vested in its Board of Directors, nine in number, and to the directors is committed the selection of a President, who must be one of themselves, with the right to remove him by a two-thirds vote; as likewise the power of appointment and removal of the cashier and other officers, clerks and employes.

The Board of Directors have likewise, in pursuance of the authority to that effect vested in them by the Articles of Association, adopted a set of by-laws, mostly upon a pattern prepared by the Treasury Department, and which are conceived to be in all respects suitable, and not susceptible of material change to any advantage.

The present movement to change radically the structure, management and control of the institution, grows out of no defector fault in the existing articles and by-laws, or either of them, but is occasioned by a difference between Mr. GEORGE OPDYKE, the President of the Bank, and the undersigned, a majority of the Board of Directors, (being six out of the nine members of the Board,) and the design of this movement, in the interest of Mr. OPDYKE, is supposed to be to accomplish such a change in the articles as to his in the position of President free from any control of the Board of Directors, and, perhaps, to trench also upon the Directors' control over the appointment, removal and conduct of the other officers and employes of the Bank; and if that cannot be done, to break up and dissolve the institution.

We are advised that if the promoters of these plans could even succeed in obtaining a majority vote of a regular stockholders' meeting in their favor, such action would be without legal effect, because, first, the proposed meeting which has been called will be irregular and illegal; and, second, the proposed changes are inconsistent with the legal powers of control and management of the bank which are vested in the Board of Directors, in virtue of the law itself, which even the stockholders cannot vary or affect; and so, that the only effect of the success of Mr. OPDYKE'S party in obtaining a majority vote at a stockholders' meeting would be to throw the affairs of the bank into litigation and confusion, to the great prejudice of the interests of the shareholders. Both the changes sought by Mr. OPDYKE could be legally and effectually accomplished, it seems to us quite clear that his success would to almost an equal degree paralyze the effective action and usefulness of the institution, and put an end to any hopes of profit for the shareholders during the continuance of such a state of things as he seeks to bring about. The undersigned, constitute a two-third majority of the Board of Directors; their term of office until January 17, 1865, is fixed and unalterable, and neither their sense of duty to the stockholders who put them in office, and many of whom it is believed were induced to subscribe to the Bank from the personal confidence reposed in them as its expected managers, nor a due regard to their own pecuniary interests as stockholders to an aggregate amount of half a million dollars, will permit them to vacate their positions, or to yield up the control of this institution to the sole-man power of Mr. OPDYKE, as seems to be desired on his part.

If, therefore, Mr. OPDYKE could succeed in giving legal effect to his plans, he would merely place the institution in the scandalous position of subjecting its management to conflicting forces, so that profit or success in its working would be out of the question.

As to the idea of breaking up or winding up the bank at Mr. OPDYKE'S dictation, because he finds he cannot control it, the advice we have received is that, aside from the other manifest objections to such a course, it is, by reason of legal objections, impracticable, and that any attempt of that nature can lead only to litigation and loss.

We have thus presented the consequences of concurrence on the part of stockholders, in the plans of Mr. OPDYKE. If, on the other hand, these schemes are overthrown by the rejection of the proposals which he or his party may present to the stockholders' meeting, the bank will be left as all other banks are left, to the responsible control and management of its Board of Directors; the vacancy occasioned by the withdrawal of Mr. OPDYKE from the Presidency will be satisfactorily filled, and the Bank, under harmonious management, will, we confidently trust, realize the expectations of profit and usefulness with which its stock was taken up.

We deem it hardly necessary or profitable to enter in this circular, which we fear should be brief, into any detailed exposition of the causes or merits of the differences which have grown up between Mr. OPDYKE and ourselves. Those stockholders who take sufficient interest in the matter will find a statement of those affairs in our affidavits, yet in answer to the injunction suit with which some of Mr. OPDYKE'S friends saw fit to visit us.

Suffice it here to say, that Mr. OPDYKE has appeared to labor under the impression that he had a controlling voice over the Directors; that the cashier must be such person as he selected, whether they deemed him suitable or not, and not such person as the directors should select; that in the selection of other officers and employes of the institution, his voice must control, and that in general he was entitled to dictate to the board, and, in substance, that the bank was to be under the one man power, and that power himself.

Neither the legal rights of the undersigned as Directors, their self-respect, their duty to the shareholders, nor their own large pecuniary interests in the institution, permitted them to concur in these notions of Mr. OPDYKE; and with such diversity of views between them and him, the breach has naturally widened until the necessity of obtaining another President has become apparent. The undersigned have certainly neither desire nor willingness to do any injustice to Mr. OPDYKE, and for verification of this they believe they need no voucher in this community, nor among these stockholders. They have regretted the unfortunate disagreement which has happened, but cannot feel that it is in any respect their fault. It was with reluctance that they came to the conclusion that the substantial interests of the bank absolutely demanded a change of its Presidency, and they had hoped that any seeming offensiveness in a compulsory removal of their presiding officer might be obviated by his resignation; but that hope being disappointed, no alternative is left to them.

The present attempt of Mr. OPDYKE, in lieu of graceful submission for the time to the constituted authority of the corporation, leaving open to himself if really aggrieved, or if a majority of the stockholders should finally be found in his favor, that redress for which full opportunity would be afforded at the next annual election) to make radical changes in the structure of the institution, and to give its management a feature of discordance, which is unprecedented, is, it seems to us, equally in bad taste, and regardless of the substantial interests of the bank and its stockholders.

quite unprecedented during past five weeks, and prices of all descriptions have lowered sellers decidedly, the market closing quite depressed. The week's sales comprise 450,000 lbs. domestic fleece at 62c.@ 65c., chiefly at 62c.@70c.; 120,000 lbs. domestic pulled at 60@65c. cash; the latter for very superior extra; 475,000 lbs. California at from 55c.@ 62½c.; 30,000 lbs. Hungarian, on private terms; 1,300 bales Honduras, at 20c.@22c.; 320 bales East Indian, at 22c. cash; 4,000 bales African, &c., at 25c.@ 40c.; 1,600 bales Cape, at 35c.@45c.; 50 bales described, at 61 25; 650 bales Mexican, at 20c.@40c.; and 400 bales Smyrna and other foreign, on terms not ascertained. In Boston, according to the Commercial Bulletin, sales have been made of 900,000 lbs. domestic at 60c.@65c. for fleece, and 72c@80c. for pulled; also, 2,000 bales foreign, including a cargo of Cape at 37½c.@41c.; one at 35c.@41½c.; some choice lots at 41c.@42c.; and 200 bales Mexican at 35c.@40c., the outside figures for choice new clip. The aggregate transactions for the week at private sale are probably the largest since the beginning of the year; and at the close, with gold ranging up and buyers becoming more numerous and anxious for supplies, there is a strong upward tendency in prices. Consumers of wool—among them several of our largest manufacturing corporations—prophesy not only by their urgent necessities, but apparently satisfied that prices are as low as they are likely to go, and nothing more is to be gained by holding off, are disposed to operate freely and buying considerably about as their immediate wants. In Philadelphia, there have been sales of 400,000 lbs. Domestic, among which was fine, at 70c.@80c.; medium at 72c.@75c.; washed, at 65c.; and a lot of Santa Fe, at 50c. About 150 bales Douskel were taken on private terms.

FREIGHTS.—Continue very dull and heavy, with 305 barrels of oil vacant in port. For Liverpool, the engagements included 1,000 bbls. Flour, at 2s.; 124,000 bushels Wheat, at 6½d.@6¾d.; 250 tcs Beef, at 5s.; 450 boxes Bacon, at 35s. 6d.; 150 boxes Ham, at 15s.; also, by steamer, 600 bales Cotton, at ¾d.; and 400 boxes Bacon, at 25s. For Glasgow, 50 kegs Tallow, at 25s.; 2,000 Calcutta Bull Staves, at 27. For Antwerp, 200 pkgs. Lard and Tallow, at 2s. 3d.

"THE PEN IS MIGHTIER THAN THE SWORD."

THE GOLD PEN—THE BEST OF ALL PENS.

MORTON'S GOLD PENS.

THE BEST PENS IN THE WORLD.

On receipt of any of the following sums in Cash, the subscriber will send by return mail, or otherwise, as directed, a Gold Pen or Pens—selected by same according to description, viz.:

GOLD PENS WITHOUT CASES.

For 25 cents, the Magic Pen; for 50 cents, the Lucky Pen; for 75 cents, the Always-Ready Pen; for 75 cents, the Elegant Pen; and for $1, the Excelsior Pen. These Pens are not numbered, but correspond in size to Numbers 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 respectively.

THE SAME PENS IN SILVER-PLATED EXTENSION CASES, WITH PENCILS.

For 50 cents, the Magic Pen; for 75 cents, the Lucky Pen; for $1, the Always-Ready Pen; for $1 25, the Elegant Pen, and for $1 50, the Excelsior Pen.

These are Well-Finished, Good-Writing Gold Pens, with Iridescent Points, the average wear of every one of which will far outlast a great deal of the Best Pens, although they are unwarranted, such, therefore, not as changeable.

MORTON'S WARRANTED PENS.

The letter "A. Morton," "Number" and "Quality," are stamped on the following Pens, and the points are warranted for six months, except against accidents.

The numbers indicate size only; No. 1 being the smallest, No. 6 the largest and No. 10 the smallest. No. 4 the smallest, and No. 10 the largest, Mammoth Gold Pen, for the desk.

Long and medium tips of all sizes and qualities. Short tips of Numbers 4, 5, 6 and 7, and made only of first quality.

The Long and Short tips are fine pointed; the Medium tips are broad, coarse business points. The engravings are the similes of the sizes and styles.

GOLD PENS WITHOUT CASES.

For 50 cts a No. 1 Pen, 1st quality; or a No. 2 Pen, 2d quality.
For $1 a No. 2 Pen, 1st quality; or a No. 3 Pen, 2d quality; or a No. 4 Pen, 3d quality.
For $1 25 a No. 3 Pen, 1st quality; or a No. 4 Pen, 2d quality; or a No. 5 Pen, 3d quality.
For $1 50 a No. 4 Pen, 1st quality; or a No. 5 Pen, 2d quality; or a No. 6 Pen, 3d quality.

GOLD PENS, ALL FIRST QUALITY, IN SILVER-MOUNTED DESK-HOLDERS.

For $2 00 a No. 4 Pen; for $2 25 a No. 5 Pen; for $2 75 a No. 6 Pen; for $3 50 a No. 7 Pen.
For $4 a No. 8 Pen; for $5 a No. 9 Pen; and for $6 a No. 10 Pen.

The "1st Quality" are pointed with the very best Iridium Points, carefully selected, and none of this quality are sold with the slightest imperfection which, still and the closest scrutiny can detect.

The "2d Quality" are superior to any Pens made by him previous to the year 1860.

The "3d Quality" he intends shall equal in respect to Durability, Elasticity and Good Writing Qualities (the only true consideration) most Gold Pens made elsewhere.

In regard to the Cheap Gold Pens, he begs leave to say that, previous to operating his New and Patented Machinery, he could not have made so good Writing and Durable Pens for the price, but the Gold been furnished gratuitously.

Parties ordering must in all instances specify the "Name" or the "Number" and "Quality" of the Pens wanted, and be particular in describing the kind they prefer—whether stiff or limber, coarse or fine.

All remittances by mail in United States letters are at my risk; and to all who send twenty cents (charge of registering) in addition to the price of goods ordered, I will guarantee their safe delivery.

Parties sending Gold or Silver will be allowed the full price for the same they remit.

TO CLUBS—A discount of 10 per cent. will be allowed on sums of $12, of 15 per cent. on $24, and of 20 per cent. on $40, if sent to one address at one time.

Address, A. MORTON,
No. 25 MAIDEN-LANE, NEW-YORK.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

A highly important General Order has been issued from the headquarters of the Army of the Potomac, which is intended to clear the decks generally for active operations. All civilians, sutlers and their employes, are ordered to the rear by the 16th. Members of the Sanitary or Christian Commissions, and registered newspaper correspondents only, can remain. All property for which there is no transportation, also goes to the rear, and the authority of Corps Commanders to grant furloughs is revoked, and none to be granted save in extreme cases, or in case of veralisted veterans.

Later news from the Red River Expedition is received in Cairo and New-Orleans, by steamship, which left the latter place on the 3d inst. On the 29th of March Gen. Smith's forces had a fight with the rebel Gen. Dick Taylor's army, 12,000 strong, on Cane River, 27 miles above Alexandria, in which the rebels were defeated with a loss of 200 killed and wounded, and 500 prisoners. It was Gen. Smith's intention to pursue the enemy and make him fight a pitched battle. By the arrival of the steamship Morning Star at this port yesterday from New Orleans April 2, we have further particulars of the fight, though entire credence was not given to the news in New Orleans on the 2d. In the fight at Bayou Rapides, on March 23, our forces captured two hundred and sixty prisoners, including twenty-two officers, four guns, and four hundred horses.

A dispatch from Louisville reports that nineteen rebels, belonging to the Third Kentucky rebel Cavalry, of Forrest's command, came into Hopkinsville, on the 7th inst., and took the oath of allegiance. They report that on March 26, when between Mayfield and Paducah, Forrest detached the Third, Seventh and Eighth Regiments Kentucky Cavalry, and permitted them to go home.

Major-Gen. Slocum, recently relieved from duty in the Department of the Cumberland, is ordered to report in person to Maj.-Gen. James B. McPherson, commanding Department of the Tennessee, for assignment to the command of the fortified post of the District of Vicksburgh.

Brig.-Gen. Wilson, formerly of Gen. Grant's staff, and lately in charge of the Cavalry Bureau at Washington, has been relieved, and appointed to the command of the First Cavalry Division of the Army of the Potomac, formerly commanded by the late Gen. Buford.

News from Memphis to the 8th reports Forrest moving southward with his trains and plunder, and Grierson as watching and harrassing his columns, though not strong enough to attack Forrest in force.

CONGRESS.

The Senate was not in session Saturday.

In the House there was a very exciting discussion in Committee of the Whole on a resolution offered by Mr. Colfax to expel Mr. Long, of Ohio, for disloyal sentiments uttered in his speech on Friday last. During the discussion, Mr. Harris, (Democrat) of Maryland, arose and loudly avowed his gratification at the secession of the South, justifying it fully, and rebuking the Democratic party for not daring to come up to his standard of political morality. Mr. Washburne, of Illinois, instantly offered a resolution to expel Mr. Harris, which received 81 votes against 56, but two-thirds being required, the resolution was not adopted. Mr. Bonham, of Ohio, then offered a resolution severely censuring Mr. Harris, declaring him to be an unworthy member of the House, which was adopted by a vote of 93 to 18. The proceedings were very turbulent, and the debates very sharp.

LEGISLATURE.

In the Senate, Saturday, the Soldiers' Voting Bill was taken up and made the special order for Tuesday next. Among the bills passed was the Albany Bridge bill; and a bill to amend the charter of the Home Insurance Company of New-York. A bill was introduced authorizing the Brooklyn authorities to raise money for an armory in the Eastern Districts. The New-York Court-house Bill was recommitted as amended by providing that the accounts shall be approved by the architect of the building. The bill, as amended, was then passed.

In the Assembly, Saturday, a concurrent resolution was adopted, for the adjournment of the Legislature on the 30th of April. Bills were passed to provide an armory for the Eighth Regiment National Guard. Authorizing the German Savings Bank to receive increased deposits. Mr. Weaver offered a resolution instructing our Senators and Representatives in Congress to vote for the repeal of all laws of Congress exempting United States securities from taxation. Also a resolution instructing the Clerk of the House to have the report of the Bank Committee on National Banks printed forthwith. This gave rise to a very exciting discussion on the merits of the report, lasting till the adjournment.

GENERAL NEWS.

Speculative purchases of Flour, Provisions, Tallow and Whisky at the Produce Exchange on Saturday were quite extensive, and prices were generally higher. Wheat was held above the views of buyers, and was inactive. Corn, Cotton, Wool and Groceries were in fair request and advancing. Most other kinds of merchandise were held with increased firmness, and were generally in good demand, chiefly on speculation. The Freight market continued dull and heavy.

The Stock Market closed dull in the Railways on Saturday. There was a further rise in the 5-20 U. S. Loan to 112¼, and a million subscribed to the 10-40 Loan. Money active.

The Proposition to Expel Representative Long.

In our judgment the Speaker's zeal outruns his discretion. His resolution is neither right nor expedient.

We have read Mr. Long's speech as published in full, on Saturday morning, by the Daily News of this City, from a copy furnished in advance. If that publication be the speech actually delivered by the Representative from Ohio—and we have yet no reason to doubt it—it was a speech which ought to be answered by something better than expulsion. It was itself a piece of folly, but it would be yet greater folly to punish it.

We publish the concluding portion of the speech, which contains its real gravamen. It will be seen that Mr. Long denies the constitutional right of coercion—that he denies the practicability of restoring the Union, and that he believes there are now but two alternatives, "either an acknowledgment of the independence of the South as an independent nation, or their complete subjugation and extermination as a people," and that of these alternatives he prefers the former—that if the war is to be prosecuted at all, it ought to be done "under the auspices of those who now conduct its management," to whom the responsibility properly belongs, and that the party with which he is connected would only put itself in a "false position if they should seek to make this issue upon the narrow basis of how this war should be prosecuted." Mr. Colfax, in his resolution, declares this to be "giving aid, countenance and encouragement to persons engaged in armed hostility to the United States." To a certain extent, this may be the case; but even at the worst, in our opinion, this plain utterance by Mr. Long is a thousand times more serviceable to the Union cause than it is to the rebel cause. It is just the sort of frankness in the leaders of the so-called Democratic party that is most needed, and it deserves encouragement, not punishment.

The great danger to the Union cause from the beginning has been that it would be betrayed by professed friends, and not that it would be conquered by open enemies. The men who have been loud in their protestations of devotion to the war, and yet have all the while been laboring indirectly to obstruct the Government and defeat the war, by drawing the people away from the main issue to side questions, have been the men who were the most to be feared. It was the insidiousness of this class of politicians that was specially aimed at in the application of the name Copperhead; which the popular instinct seized upon at once, as expressive of the specially hateful and perilous form of public enmity. It was by these false issues, put forward under the guise of friendship for the war, that Horatio Seymour was made Governor of New-York, and that other men of the same sort came very near obtaining the official control of the other great States, the compassing of which would, in all earthly probability, have ended in the disablement of the Administration, and the ruin of the country. So long as the line between the supporters of the Government and its opponents was the plain broad line between war and peace, the Government could not be endangered. The vast majority of the Northern people ever have been, and ever will be, firm as adamant in their determination to save this Republic undivided from the Lakes to the Gulf. The speeches of such men as Alexander Long have no more effect upon that determination, than pop-guns upon Gibraltar. The open peace men who stand under their own white flag where they can be seen and known, are impotent. They who, with peace in their hearts, stand under the war flag, plotting all the while how to balk its true defenders and bring it to the dust, are the men to be feared. And we say that when an Anti-Administration Member of Congress plants himself boldly on peace ground and tells the dissenters of his party that they are in a false position—that honor and consistency demand that they should either sustain the Administration or else move squarely over to his place—he has rendered a positive service to the Government and deserves thanks rather than expulsion.

But it is said that Mr. Long in denying the right of coercion, and favoring the recognition of the Confederacy, utters that which, if acted upon, would give the rebellion triumph. Very well. Let the House then be careful not to act upon it. As for the people, we will guarantee that there will be no such action on their part, if Congress does its duty in other respects. Let their Representatives faithfully sustain the financial credit of the Government, and faithfully provide for the completest efficiency, of the army and navy, and the rebels are welcome to all the "aid, countenance and encouragement" they can get from the barren utterances of all the Alexander Longs in Congress or out of it. The rebels don't care a rush for such speeches. They know, as well as we do, that such language does not express the popular sentiment of the North, and that there is nothing substantial behind it. What they do care for—the sort of aid and encouragement they crave, is the other form of Congressional unfaithfulness—the neglect to pass the practical measures necessary to support the financial and military strength of the Government. We fear that if expulsion were the penalty of that sort of rebel aid and encouragement, the House would be left without a quorum.

"Public Debt and Private Expenditure."

"A Constant Reader," in a communication, which for convenient reference we publish in an adjoining column, puts to us a series of questions, based upon a recent article of ours—to answer which questions in such a way as to make this matter clear to persons who possess so little familiarity with the elements of political economy as "A Constant Reader," would require a treatise, instead of a newspaper article. But, nevertheless, we shall, as he seems greatly excited about it, do the best we can with the space at our command, and take them in their order.

1. This question is based on the most patent and notorious of all economical fallacies—that money is capital. It is not so. It is a medium of exchange, as counters might be, or cowries, or wampum, or beads are in many countries, or as greenbacks are in this. The part played by coin in commerce is much the same as that played by a good road. It enables men to exchange their commodities more readily than they would otherwise do; but exchange would not cease if it were not in existence. It would simply be some less convenient. In point of fact, in America and England very little gold is ever used. The medium of exchange is mainly checks and bills. Consequently, if I have $1,000 in money, it is simply a sign that I am entitled to receive on demand a certain portion of the real wealth of the nation—its food, clothing, machinery and buildings. If I draw this share or portion and consume it—eat it, or wear it, or throw it away—the country is less rich by precisely that quantity. The money that I give up on receiving it does not restore it; it merely conveys to another person the right to replace what I have consumed, by taking as much more himself from the same source. The transaction may be illustrated in this way: I am entitled to one-fourth of 1,000 bushels of corn in Chicago, and I determine that I will draw my share and use it. I go to a wine merchant in New-York, and take from him as much claret as he may think the 250 bushels of corn are worth, and I give him a written order (money) for the corn. I then invite a party of friends, and we drink the wine; the merchant sends to Chicago and draws the corn. How do we stand then? The merchant has the corn and I have nothing. In other words, out of the equivalent of five hundred bushels of corn, there remains simply two hundred and fifty bushels. There has been a transfer of the corn, but the wine I have consumed (destroyed) is not replaced. As a "Constant Reader" very judiciously remarks, the money that we spend may "go on for ages doing its useful work," no matter what comes of the things on which we spend it; but if we kept consuming without producing as much as we consumed, or while producing less, we should, before many "ages," find ourselves with plenty of money and nothing else; or, to recur to our former illustration, with magnificent roads and nothing to transport over them.

2. "If every cent spent for articles of personal consumption is so much withdrawn from the capital of the country, and lost, how long would it take to destroy the whole capital of the country and reduce the nation to beggary?"

We answer—if production were to cease at the same time, the nation would be reduced to beggary in from one to two years; and the worst of it would be that we fear its beggary would profit it little. All that is consumed is lost forever, but inasmuch as we go on producing every year as much as we consume, if no more, we get richer instead of poorer. If we get on without consuming anything at all, we should of course get rich still faster. If our correspondent is in business, and can avoid purchasing "groceries and clothing," and add what he would have spent on these commodities to his capital, he will readily see that his business, and consequently we hope, his profits, would increase in greatly accelerated ratio. We may say the same thing with regard to the silks and pianos. In fact, the whole advantage of machinery over manual labor lies in the fact that it consumes less while producing more than men. It needs neither clothing, groceries or silks, and is consequently more profitable to the community as a worker than men would be. If our correspondent go into business with a capital of $10,000—say a manufacturing business—he draws his share of the real wealth of the country, in buildings, raw materials, and food and clothing for his laborers. These things are real capital, created by the labor and abstinence of other laborers and capitalists. Suppose his profits are 20 per cent., or in other words, that after having supported himself and his workmen, and repaired his buildings and machinery, he has $2,000 a year surplus. This surplus consists in cloth; he exchanges it for money; the money he may either spend in silks and jewelry—that is, consume it; or he may add it to his capital—that is, erect more buildings, buy more raw material, and employ more laborers. The result in the first case will be, that he will have destroyed it; for what is silk that is worn out, or tea or wine that is drunk, or confectionery that is eaten? The result in the other case will be, that he will every year add more cloth to the National stock, besides feeding and clothing more laborers. That the money which passes through his hands keeps "circulating," is of no sort of importance, and has no influence upon the transaction in any stage.

If every consumer limited himself to articles of indispensable necessity, the consequence would be that nothing would be produced but articles of indispensable necessity; and we should become very speedily a laborious, ignorant and degraded community. The great end of production is, first, the support of life, and then the promotion of human comfort and enjoyment. We labor that we may consume, and we labor hard in order that we may be able to consume a great deal, and there is no better test of the prosperity of a country than the extent to which all classes consume over and above the necessaries. If a man has $10,000 a year there is no good reason for his living like a man who has only $1,000; but if he has $10,000 a year, and there is a sudden call on him for $5,000 a year, which he regularly borrows, we must admit that it is either very imprudent or very dishonest, and it may be both, for him to go on consuming (spending) as much as ever. It is his duty to retrench, and it would be a very ridiculous thing of him to attempt to justify his course by announcing that he continued his old style of living in order to keep money in circulation, "and enable the grocer and merchant to carry on their business."

The nation, it must never be forgotten, is a collection of individuals. The nation is now producing less than it did four years ago; half of it is ravaged by war; its ships driven off the sea; a million of its workers are idling in camp, and it has borrowed and spent $2,000,000,000. Instead, however, of living as we did four years ago, we are living far more extravagantly, or in other words, consuming at a greater rate. We ought, on the contrary, consume rather less, and convert our savings into capital in order to increase production. But this does not mean that we are to stop all consumption or restrict ourselves to bread and water and sackcloth. When we object to a man's dressing in satin and drinking champagne three times a day, it is absurd of him to ask us if we wish him to live on gruel and go naked.

City Interests at Albany—The Underground Railroad.

The defeat of the Underground Railroad in the Legislature, coupled as it was with the rejection of Mayor Gunther's proposition to compel the street railroads to pay ten per cent of their receipts to the City Treasury, is a fresh and alarming illustration of the enormous power over our property and comfort which is now wielded by the omnibus proprietors, railroad corporations and political jobbers. The Legislature on which we have been in the habit of relying, seems to have surrendered itself completely to their hands. No remonstrance, or protest, or expression of opinion from the public seems to have the slightest influence in preventing the sanction of every fraud or imposition which any board of speculators in the City may take it into their heads to attempt. The facility with which charters have for some time been granted to proprietors of street railroads, without the exaction of a single guarantee for either their responsibility or good faith, has been scandalous enough, but it is hard to find an epithet strong enough to characterize the indifference to public comfort and decency evinced in the resolute and steady refusal to enact a single clause for the regulation of the conveyances to be run under the grants—their size, cleanliness, number of passengers, and times of running. The streets are handed over remorselessly to hordes of speculators, and they are left to work their placers with a single eye to their own profit, which is enormous. The taxation has reached a point which threatens the whole property of the City with depreciation, and seems not unlikely before very long to drive business away to other parts; the poor are suffering severely from the consequent high rents and high prices of clothing and provisions, and yet it is impossible to secure the sanction of the Albany legislators to a measure so eminently just and expedient as the levy of a tax of ten per cent. upon the receipts of the companies who have obtained the monopoly of our streets, and are reaping enormous gains from carrying us up and down on them in cattle-boxes. As soon as anything likely to interfere with their profits is proposed, they rush up to Albany, and though these operators are never visible, we see the result in after days in the tabling of the obnoxious bill.

This Underground Railroad promised to be an immense boon to the City. It was perfectly feasible; a similar road has been in successful operation in London for over a year; it encroaches on no vested interest; takes no one's land or house; interferes with no traffic or thoroughfare; offers cheap, comfortable and speedy transit from one end of the island to the other; requires no money from the public, will add nothing to municipal taxation, and is undertaken by men of the highest character and standing, both social and commercial. In short, there is not a single objection to be made to it on the part of the public or the Government, and yet the Committee of the Senate has reported against it under the lead of a Senator from this City, and it has been laid on the table, for what reason is not stated. We wonder how much longer the people of the City will permit themselves to be thus plundered by men who are ostensibly their servants and dependents. The matter concerns the working class more than any other. The whole coast and whole continent is open to the capitalists and the wealthy, but the poor have no escape; and if they wish to prevent the horseleeches who are now slowly sucking out their life-blood from draining it to the last drop, it is time for them to be up and doing.

Good for Health.—Some of the principal omnibus proprietors give notice by advertisement that they raise the fares from and after to-day to ten cents. This is a very large increase, though enough persons will probably pay it to make the business more profitable than it has been hitherto. The railroads, we believe, are restricted by law to their present rates. The action of the omnibus proprietors will increase the number of pedestrians and thus tend to promote the public health.

The Kings County Circuit Court.—The April term of the Kings County Circuit Court will be commenced this morning, before Judge Barnard. The day calendar embraces causes from Nos. 1 to 35 inclusive.

AMUSEMENTS.

Meyerbeer's grand opera of "Robert le Diable" will be given here to-night, for the third time, with its magnificent distribution, which embraces nearly all the leading artists of Mr. Maretzek's company. The work is one of the most popular in the repertoire, and has drawn two of the finest houses of the season. We may safely anticipate a brilliant and fashionable attendance to-night. On Wednesday "Faust" will be repeated. The manager intends, after a few more performances, to close the Academy, in order that the regular forces may devote themselves exclusively to the proper rehearsal of Meyerbeer's "Huguenots," which will be produced as the concluding attraction of the Spring Season. Visitors, therefore, would do well to remember that their chances of hearing Mr. Maretzek's company are but few.

Miss Avonia Jones has won a genuine success at the Winter Garden. Her efforts will take a wider range this week. "Judith" is too heavy for the average, or, in fact, any other public. It has evidently been written in haste. Miss Jones has wisely concluded to produce other plays. "Fazio" is already announced, and "Medea" is promised for the lady's benefit, on Friday next. To-night "Judith," with its fine scenery and appointments.

Mrs. John Wood made an incursion into the realms of Paddy last week, apparently for the purpose of displacing Mr. Frank Drew as an Irishman. The play was Jose Brougham's "Irish Emigrant"—a neat and effective little drama. Mr. Drew played the leading Irish part with somewhat less than his usual amount of exaggeration, but the performance was not of a character to alter the general verdict on the subject of this gentleman's exceedingly loud and vulgar style of acting. To-night our versatile District-Attorney provides a comic entertainment called "Loyalina, or Brigadier-General Fortunio and his Seven Gifted Servants." It is based on Planche's well known burlesque of "Fortunio," and report speaks in the highest terms of its merits. Mrs. Wood and all the principal members of her company are in the cast. The piece will be preceded by Morton's drama called "Our Wife," in which Mrs. Wm. Wheatleigh will make her first appearance.

Many pleasant changes are made in Mr. Wallack's bill for the present week. To-night Planche's charming comedietta, "The Follies of a Night," and the farce called the "Secret," will be played; to-morrow, the "Heir at Law," and on Wednesday, for the benefit of Mr. Floyd, the "Stranger." We hope Mr. Floyd may have a "bumper." On Friday the charming comedy of "Americans in Paris" will be revived.

Mr. Edwin Booth continues his fine performance of Bertuccio, in the "Fools Revenge," during the whole of this week. It is accepted as one of his finest impersonations, and the play itself merits the favor bestowed upon it.

Mr. Barnum announces that the spectacle of "Aphrodite" will be continued on the bills until Saturday next, when it will be positively withdrawn. The sensation of the hour, "Cudjo's Cave," has been dramatized for this establishment, and will be produced in the best possible style on Monday next. For the thousand miscellaneous entertainments at this establishment, we must refer our readers to the advertisement column.

Mr. Robert Heller will give an entertainment of music and magic at the Sanitary Fair, on Wednesday next. His new establishment will open on Monday next.

At the Theatre Francais, to-morrow night, (Tuesday,) "La Grâce de Dieu," dramatic vaudeville in five acts, will be given.

Mrs. Johnston (late Miss Hawley) will give a concert at Irving Hall, on Wednesday next, the 13th inst. On the 15th, Mrs. J. E. Thomas takes a benefit at the same establishment, and sandwiched between these entertainments we find still another announced, namely, the concert of Mr. George Simson, on the 14th.

Teresa Carreno, the child pianist, will give a concert at Dodworth's, on the 18th.

Van Amburgh & Co.'s Menagerie.—On Thursday night this great zoological exhibition, which has afforded unqualified gratification to thousands upon thousands of our citizens during the past Winter, will positively close, so that only four days will remain during which the public will have an opportunity of viewing the vast collection of beasts, birds and reptiles which Mr. Van Amburgh has brought together from the most inaccessible quarters of the globe, and located all at once, for the convenience of stay-at-home folks, in the most populous part of Broadway. The menagerie is open throughout the day and evening, and three interesting performances by trained animals are given daily. Many additions of interest have recently been made to the collection.

Musical.

Teresa Carreno's Private Musical Soirée.—On Saturday evening we attended a very select and elegant private musical entertainment, given by this wonderfully gifted child pianist. The interval of some months since her last performance has been diligently employed in improving her physique and perfecting her already almost unrivaled powers of execution. It certainly is no discredit to our best and most matured artists to assume that few, if any of them, excel in delicacy of touch and grasp of conception this infant, scarcely ten years of age. We can well imagine how, by mechanical drill and incessant laborious application, a child even of that age may achieve flippant rapidity of scale movement, and even a ready and remarkably superficial brilliancy of execution, but in Teresa Carreno we see a precociously learned thoughtfulness of style that cannot be taught, and will not be drowned in the most terrific application of forte, and which Mme. De Sarl ascribes as the specialty of the German musical mind. But in Teresa Carreno this underlying gift is relieved and attenuated by that sympathetic vivacity which belongs to her sex and her childhood, and which enlivens the deeper moods of her inspiration, and popularizes their brooding German tendencies. This union of the thoughtful and the spirited goes to make up Bulwer's definition of genius, when he calls it the freshness and enthusiasm of childhood, carried into the thoughtfulness and maturity of manhood.

The youthful pianist was aided by several artists of merit. Mme. Marzella, soprano, delighted the company with the richness and brilliancy of her voice. Her rendering of the cavatina, from "La Sonnambula," was a great treat. Mrs. Kneeree acquitted herself, as she always does, meritoriously. Mr. Parker, the new tenor, an artist of rare promise, electrified the circle with the gem from "Faust." Several excellently rendered quartets formed a happy feature of the evening. Mr. Draper, the Earl-tone, directed Teresa's entertainment with his usual good taste.

"Debt and Expenditure."

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In an editorial of the 17th ult., on "debt and expenditure," I find the following assertions: "If I have a thousand dollars, for which I have no immediate use, and I spend it in dinners or wines, or costly furniture or clothing, or anything else, which by my use of them are destroyed, it is just as much lost to the country as if it were burnt up." "Every cent spent for articles of personal consumption, is so much withdrawn from the capital of the country and lost," &c.

Now, Sir, I do not often find occasion to differ with you, but, really, the above assertions seem to me so unfounded and monstrous that I am greatly surprised to find them in the Times.

As I want light on the subject, will you answer the following questions:

1. If I spend a thousand dollars in articles that I consume, does not that thousand dollars become a part of the capital of those from whom I bought the articles, and how then is "it so much lost to country as if it were burnt up?" Or, how is it lost at all, since it is in possession of somebody? If the thousand dollars were lost, and I should cast them into the sea, they would, indeed, be lost forever; but if I spend them for food or clothing, they are preserved to the public and may go on for ages in doing useful work. How then can it be the same? Whether I spend them for my use or throw them into the sea? If the thousand dollars are in greenbacks or other notes, and I choose to burn them, I do not thereby destroy one cent of capital. A note has no intrinsic value, being but the evidence of indebtedness, and to destroy it is the same as making a present of so much to my debtor, and adding so much to his capital.

2. If "every cent spent for articles of personal consumption is so much withdrawn from the capital of the country, and lost," how long would it take to destroy the whole capital of the country and reduce the nation to beggary? I never understood, that when I buy meat, and groceries, and clothing, I am but destroying the capital of the country, nor have I thought so in regard to silks and wines or pianos, &c. I merely thought that I was circulating, not destroying money, and that I was enabling the butcher, the grocer, and merchant to carry on their business.

3. If none but producers preserve or add to the capital of the country, how long would there be any profit in production, if every consumer restricted himself to articles of indispensable necessity? Are not mills and mines producing articles of consumption, and do they not depend on the consumer for their value?

I approve of economy, and am obliged to practice it more than is pleasant, yet I cannot condemn extravagance on the ground that it destroys the capital of the country. A CONSTANT READER.

Note from Hon. M. F. Conway.

New-York, Sunday, April 10, 1864.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

My attention has just been called to yesterday's proceedings of the National House of Representatives, in which it appears that I am charged by Hon. Mr. Cox, of Ohio, with having offered in the last Congress resolutions recognizing the Southern Confederacy.

I wish to add to this announcement one word of explanation. I offered no such resolutions as the gentleman states; but I did express in a speech my preference for such recognition to a prosecution of the war for a restoration of the Union, on the old slaveholding basis.

I expressed a desire that the South should be limited to its own section, if the alternative were its supremacy in the nation and over the continent.

That was not only my position then, but it is my position now, and I am ready to stand by it for all time.

I have always regarded this war as intended, in the order of Providence, to redeem the nation from the power of Slavery, and reorganize it on the principle of the Jeffersonian ordinance of 1787.

To the extent that it has been calculated to accomplish this, I have been for it; to the extent that it has not, I have been against it.

This is, was and always will be my position—nothing more, nothing less.

Mr. Cox knows perfectly well that the views expressed by me were based on two propositions, which, if he had not been willing to do me injustice, he would have stated; first, that the war had been mismanaged in a manner to disaffect the masses of the people; and secondly, that this rendered it probable that the party of which he was a member would come into power, and give the whole country back to the abomination of the slaveholders. The result of the election in New-York, which had taken place just before, and by which Gov. Seymour was brought forward with high Presidential prospects, gave point to this apprehension, which was shared in, to a greater or less degree, by all sincere friends of the cause.

Rather than we should have suffered from such a misfortune, I would have recognized the Southern Confederacy a thousand times over.

The war has substantially settled down on a correct basis; and the struggle is now between the North and South, each in its absolute character. On this basis, I am for the Union now and forever.

I remain, &c., M. F. CONWAY.

The Tax Levy.

In the discussion which has arisen in regard to the Tax Levy, the Aldermen thus explain their action. By ordinance, the Comptroller is directed to submit the Budget to the Common Council on the 1st November. This year it was found impossible to submit until Jan. 15. It was then sent to the printers, where, between corrections and the necessary delay, it was detained until about the 20th February, when it was again placed in the hands of the Board of Aldermen. On the 9th March the Finance Committee reported the Budget substantially the same as received from the Comptroller, and it was passed on the 11th. The Comptroller had reduced the amounts called for by the different Departments over one million and a half of dollars, and the Board of Aldermen reduced appropriations to sundry Departments and Commissions, as submitted by him, nearly $200,000. But certain additions were made by the Board for matters deemed of special importance, such as $100,000 for the improving of the Russ pavement; $40,000 for a parade ground, recommended by the Mayor and Special Committee of the Common Council; $40,000 for resetting monumental stones, and $100,000 for reception of regiments and bands of returned veterans. The 20th March was the last day for presentation to the Legislature; the Board of Councilmen had prepared amendments making appropriations from the departments far in excess of what the Aldermen would assent to, and all efforts to induce them to unite on the Aldermanic budget failing, they ceased to be consulted, and it was forwarded to Albany. In regard to the non-submission to the Mayor, it is stated that the matter of doing so was discussed, but it was known that he would return it with his objections, and therefore to avoid a delay which might prove fatal, it was not presented to him.

The amount of the proposed tax levy has been stated to be fifteen millions of dollars. This, according to the report of the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen, is an error—being a little over thirteen millions; the exact figures, $13,088,198 75. The report shows the total City expenditures during the last six years to be $40,170,235 15—an increase during that period of $1,130,774 52. Yet for a corresponding period the County expenditures, under the exclusive control of the Board of Supervisors, with an aggregate expenditure of only $24,868,732 89, have increased $3,899,092 27; in other words, while their expenditures have been little over one-half the City expenditures, they have increased the county expenditures over one million and a-half of dollars more than the increase on the account of the City, the aggregate expenditure which has nearly doubled.

The increase this year over 1863, as appears by the report, is $987,582 18.

Of this amount the county increase is	$400 349 39
Board of Education	357,719 46
Commissioners of Charities and Correction	109,007 00
Common Council	119,371 34
	$926,452 91
Decrease Departments and Central Park	78,840 56
Total	$847,582 18

From all these statements, it will be seen that the Board of Supervisors are responsible for the greater proportion of the increase, while they have escaped with but little attention or censure. It is very natural, then, that the Common Council should not desire to be also burthened with their sins.

The discussion of the Tax Levy, and other municipal matters, is having a good effect. The fact that reforms can be made in the City and County Governments, which will not only decrease their expenses, but also increase their efficiency, is being made public, and all classes of citizens are moving to effect them. It would be a wise thing for both the Supervisors and the Common Council to lend themselves at once and earnestly to the work, which certainly will be done.

The American Presbyterian and Theologic al Review.—J. M. Sherwood, No. 5 Beekman-street, New-York. This quarterly for April, appears with commendable promptness in view of the difficulties which publishers are universally having with printers. It contains an elaborate and scholarly paper by Rev. Dr. E. F. Hatfield, of this City, upon the "Messiah Coming," and one on the "Political Principles of the Old Testament Prophets," by Dr. Hermann Hupfeld. Rev. Dr. Goodwin, Provost of the University of Pennsylvania, combats, with much ability, the theories regarding the great antiquity of the human race. Dr. Bruce, of Constantinople, gives some curious and interesting translations of Bulgarian popular songs. Prof. Noah Porter, of Yale College, reviews the principles of "Morell's Philosophy," and Dr. Howard Crosby, of this City, has a paper upon "Paul's Allegorical use of the Mosaic Narrative." The names of the writers, and the list which we have given of the topics discussed, are a sufficient guarantee of the variety and vigor which mark the present issue of this able periodical.

OBITUARY.

Death of Gov. Marmaduke.

From the St. Louis Republican, April 8.

Gov. M. M. MARMADUKE, a prominent citizen of this State, died at his residence in Saline County, on the 24th ult., from disease of the bowels. He was 73 years of age.

Gov. MARMADUKE was a native of Virginia. He came here in 1808, and was at one time Lieut.-Governor and Acting-Governor of this State. He was a devoted follower of Col. BENTON during the lifetime of the latter. Through a brother-in-law of Gov. C. F. JACKSON, and father of Gen. JOHN S. MARMADUKE, of the rebel army, and of HENRY MARMADUKE, now in the rebel navy, and also of VINCENT MARMADUKE, (a member of the State Convention, banished by Gen. SCHOFIELD for disloyalty,) Gov. M. was throughout a consistent Unionist, and died in the faith. He was a wealthy man, and a useful member of the community.

Impure Breath.

Among all the disagreeable consequences that follow that the decay of the teeth, an impure breath must be the most unpleasant and mortifying to its possessor, as it is the most inescapable and offensive in society. How often for preacher experiment a distinct coldness shown even from the best of friends, or perhaps the one most tenderly cherished, from this person. You are ignorant of the cause yourself, the subject is so delicate, your most intimate friend will not mention it. Why not remove this one great barrier to your HEALTH, BEAUTY and HAPPINESS, at once, by using that justly popular Dentifrice, Fragrant SOZODONT, the most convenient, pleasant and efficacious gem for the toilet the world has ever produced.

Sold by Druggists everywhere at 75 cents per bottle.

Military Officers and Soldiers should have Brown's Bronchial Troches, as they are to be carried in the pocket and taken upon the first appearance of a cold or cough, which, if neglected, may terminate in something serious. As there are imitations, be sure to obtain the genuine Brown's Bronchial Troches, which are sold everywhere at 25 cents a box.

Merton's Gold Pens are now sold at the same prices as before the commencement of the war; this is entirely owing to the Manufacturer's improvements in machinery, his present large Retail Business and Cash-in-Advance System; for, until he commenced advertising, his business was done on Credit and strictly with the Trade.

The Merton Gold Pens are the only ones sold at old prices, as the makers of all other gold pens charge the Premium on the Gold, Government Tax, &c.; but Merton has no one charged his prices, wholesale or retail.

Of the great numbers sent by mail to all parts of the world during the past few years, not one in a thousand has failed to reach its destination in safety; showing that the Merton Gold Pen can be obtained by any one in every part of the world, at the same price, postage only excepted.

Reader, you can have an enduring, always ready, and reliable Gold Pen, exactly adapted to your hand and style of writing, which will do your writing vastly cheaper than Steel Pens; and at the present almost universal High-Pressure Prices of everything, you can have a Merton Gold Pen cheaper, in proportion to the labor spent upon it and material used, than any other Gold Pen in the World. If you want one, see "The Pen is Mightier than the Sword," in another column.

"A Clear Head," Sound and Balmy Sleep, with (the desideratum,) "CLOSED LIPS," are pleasing results from the use of BURNO'S CATARRH SNUFF. Sold by all druggists.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS.—THEIR USE PRODUCES this healthful commotion in a diseased body which constrains it to cleanse itself of what is hurtful. Then we see the dull yellow skin made clear by their use; the eye becomes bright and animated; the blood is purified; often the hearing is restored; costiveness is cured, and every organ of the fabric of the body becomes healthy, and, what is most important, Brandreth's Pills are safe; no danger from overdose; eat and drink your usual diet. Beside these qualities, they take away only matters that are diseased, whose life is below that of the surrounding parts. Those who have confidence in them escape long fits of sickness, and enjoy a large share of robust health, because their timely use removes the seeds of disease before they germinate and bear evil fruit.

TESTIMONIAL FROM ONE OF THE MOST RESPECTABLE CITIZENS OF NEW-YORK.

DEAFNESS AND CATARRH CURED.

NO. 420 SIXTH-AV., NEW-YORK, Dec. 3, 1863.

I was deaf for several years, and hearing of the great cures performed by Dr. Von Eisenberg, I was induced to place myself under his care, and I am now happy to state that my hearing was entirely restored after a short treatment. I was also suffering from chronic catarrh, of which I was also cured by the skillful treatment of Dr. Von Eisenberg. I do but justice to the Doctor in stating that in treating me he displayed that skill and knowledge which have already procured for him such a deserved reputation, and that the principles which direct his system of curing Deafness and Catarrh are such as to render success certain, in my opinion. Many months have passed since Dr. Von Eisenberg restored my hearing, and it continues as good as ever.

CATARRH CURED.

READ!

I have been suffering for a long time from a severe Catarrh, with a continual fullness in my head, a tightness across my chest, a weight over my eyes, which were weak, watery, and very painful. My nostrils were constantly obstructed with a pouring fluid. That frequent sneezing, hoarseness of my voice, often attended with a fullness of my throat, great soreness, and a continual dropping. Dr. Von Eisenberg has cured me of all these disagreeable sufferings. May, indeed, say that I lead a new life. The treatment of Dr. Von Eisenberg is as skillful as it is successful. It is in my opinion impossible to overrate the benefit I have received at his hands. I heartily recommend any one suffering like myself to place themselves under Dr. Von Eisenberg's care, with a certainty of being speedily cured.

DEAF.

HARLEM, July 20, 1863.

I have been deaf for over TWENTY-FIVE YEARS, and Dr. VON EISENBERG operated on both of my ears without the slightest pain—a thing that I could not believe could be done. I now hear well, and feel as I never felt for the last twenty years. The dexterity and skill with which the operation was performed evince the highest practical ability. Hear perfectly. It is now over a month since the operation, and I continue to feel as well as ever.

WILLIAM LIDDLE,
Harlem, 126th-st., between 2d and 3d-avs.

NO. 126 ALLEN-ST., NEW-YORK, Feb. 8, 1863.

I have been completely deaf in one ear, and partially so in the other, for above seventeen years, with a disagreeable discharge from both ears, combined with continual rumbling noise in the head, for which I have been treated by almost eminent practitioner in the City without the slightest relief.

Introduced Dr. Von Eisenberg, but I must candidly say that I had no faith in his success when told so. It is, therefore, due to Dr. Von Eisenberg to acknowledge that I am entirely cured; also, that he displayed that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such an unrivaled reputation. As I have had an opportunity of comparing his modest treatment with that of others, I can truly state that it is not only superior, but the principles which direct his mode of restoring the hearing are, in my opinion, certain.

JOHN TAYLOR.

NEW-YORK, July 23, 1863.

This certifies that my mother has been for some time afflicted with partial deafness, suffering from pain, and rumbling noises in the head, together with other inflictions of a total loss of hearing. Dr. Von Eisenberg removed from her ears a great quantity of matter, together with coagulated blood, relieving her instantaneously, and all without pain. His with grateful thanks that I give this testimony to his skill.

CHRONIC CATARRH CURED.

READ.

NEW-YORK, March 28, 1863.

This is to certify, that I have suffered from very severe CHRONIC CATARRH, with a dull heaviness in the head. I felt my nose completely stopped up accompanied by continual soreness of the throat, the chills creeping over me with occasional hot flushes, a great tightness of the chest and pain, so much so, that every one thought it was consumption. Having heard of the great cures performed by Dr. Von Eisenberg, I consulted him with but little hope of cure. I am now happy to be enabled to add my testimonial to the great number already in the Doctor's possession, as to his scientific and successful mode of treatment, as he has shown in my case that skill and knowledge which have procured for him so great a reputation. I can so entirely recommend all sufferers from CHRONIC CATARRH and BONE THROAT to apply at once to Dr. Von Eisenberg, with a certainty of being cured."

U. S. 10-40 BONDS.

These Bonds are issued under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1864, which provides that in lieu of so much of the loan authorized by the act of March 3, 1863, to which this is supplementary, the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to borrow from time to time, on the credit of the United States, not exceeding TWO HUNDRED MILLIONS DOLLARS, during the current fiscal year, and to prepare and issue thereafter Coupon and Registered Bonds of the United States; and all Bonds issued under this Act shall be EXEMPT FROM TAXATION by or under any State or municipal authority.

Subscriptions to these bonds are received in United States notes or notes of National Banks. They are TO BE REDEEMED IN COIN, at the pleasure of the Government, at any period not less than ten nor more than forty years from their date, and until their redemption FIVE PER CENT. INTEREST WILL BE PAID IN COIN, on Bonds of not over one hundred dollars annually, and on all other bonds semi-annually.

The interest is payable on the first days of March and September in each year. The semi-annual Coupons are payable at those dates, and the annual Coupons on the 30, and 100 dollar Bonds are payable on the first of March.

Subscribers will receive either Registered or Coupon Bonds, as they may prefer.

Registered Bonds will be issued of the denominations of fifty dollars ($50), one hundred dollars ($100), five hundred dollars ($500), one thousand dollars ($1,000), five thousand dollars ($5,000), and ten thousand dollars ($10,000), and Coupon Bonds of the denominations of fifty dollars ($50), one hundred dollars ($100), five hundred dollars ($500), and one thousand dollars ($1,000).

Subscribers to this loan will have the option of having their bonds draw interest from March 1, by paying the accrued interest in coin—(or in United States notes, or the notes of National Banks, adding fifty per cent. for premium), or receive them drawing interest from the date of subscription and deposit.

The fact that these Bonds are exempt from municipal or State taxation enhances their value from one to three per cent. per annum, according to the rate of tax levies in various parts of the country.

At the present rate of premium on gold they pay over eight per cent. interest in currency, and are of equal convenience as a permanent or temporary investment.

It is believed that no securities offer so great inducements to lenders as the various descriptions of United States Bonds. In all other forms of indebtedness, the faith or ability of private parties or stock companies or separate communities only is pledged for payment, while for the debts of the United States the whole property of the country is holden to secure the payment of both principal and interest in coin.

These Bonds may be subscribed for in sums from $50 up to any magnitude, on the same terms, and are thus made equally available to the smallest lender and the largest capitalist. They can be converted into money at any moment, and the holder will have the benefit of the interest.

The fact that all duties on imports are payable in specie, furnishes a fund for like payment of interest on all Government Bonds, largely in excess of the wants of the treasury for this purpose.

Upon the receipt of subscriptions a certificate of deposit therefor, in duplicate, will be issued, the original of which will be forwarded by the subscriber to the Secretary of the Treasury, at Washington, with a letter stating the kind (registered or coupon) and the denominations of bonds required.

Upon the receipt of the original certificates at the Treasury Department, the Bonds subscribed for will be transmitted to the subscribers respectively.

Subscriptions will be received by the Treasurer of the United States at Washington, and the Assistant Treasurers at New-York, Boston, and Philadelphia, and by the

AN INTERESTING HISTORY OF DR. SCHENCK'S OWN CASE WHILE LABORING UNDER CONSUMPTION, AND HOW HIS PULMONIC SYRUP, SEA-WEED TONIC, AND MANDRAKE PILLS ACT ON THE SYSTEM IN CURING THAT DISEASE, AND THE GREAT SUCCESS ATTENDING IT.

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, March 30, 1864.

TO THE PUBLIC.

Thirty years ago, I was in the last stages of Pulmonary Consumption, and given up to die. I resided in Philadelphia, and Dr. Joseph Parrish, then of this City, ordered me to Moorestown, N. J., a distance of nine miles, which took me two days to get there. On my arrival, I was put to bed, and there lay for many weeks. This was my native place, where all my family had lived and died of Consumption. Dr. Thornton, who attended my father in his last illness, was called, and gave me one week to fix up my affairs. He had seen all my family go that way, and thought I was to go, too. Then I heard of the remedies I now offer to the public, which cured me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrating my whole system.

They soon ripened the matter on my lungs, and I would spit off more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning. As soon as that began to subside, my cough, fever, pain, nightsweats—all began to leave me, and my appetite become so great, that it was with difficulty I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and I have been growing in flesh ever since. For many years I have enjoyed uninterrupted good health, keeping the liver and stomach healthy with the Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills as I am of a bilious temperament. My weight is two hundred and twenty pounds. On my recovery, people would send for me, far and near, to see if their cases were like mine. For this purpose I pay professional visits in the large cities. The consumptives wish to see the one that makes these medicines, and who was cured of consumption by them. To make new lungs is impossible; but cavities in the lungs and chronic ulcerations of the bronchial tubes can be healed. Such cases are dying hourly under the ordinary treatment of physicians, and just such are cured by the proper use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills.

I am now a healthy man, with a large cavity in the middle lobe of the right lung, the lower lobe very much depatized, and considerable adhesion of the pleura. The left lung is sound, and the upper lobe of the right lung is in a tolerably healthy condition. The great reason why physicians do not cure consumption is, they try to do too much; they give medicine to stop the cough, to stop chills, to stop nightsweats, hectic fever, and, by so doing, they derange the whole digestive powers, locking up the secretions, and virtually killing the patient instead of cure. After I make a careful examination of the patient with the Stethoscope, and find lungs enough left to cure, I direct the patient how to use the three remedies. I do not try to stop a cough, nightsweats, chills or fever. Remove the causes, and they will all stop of their own accord. No one can be cured of consumption, liver-complaint, dyspepsia, catarrh, canker, ulcerated throat, unless the liver and stomach are made healthy. In New-England this canker, chronic catarrh, ulcerated throat, elongation of uvula, is more prevalent than in any other portion of the country. This is readily cured by healthy stomach. You may burn it out with caustic time and again, and all they will get is temporary relief. Correct the stomach and liver, and

COUNTRY RESIDENCES.

FOR SALE—THE HOME OF THE LATE A. J. Downing, Esq., on the bay at Newburg. An elegant country seat, with landscape and a water view unsurpassed upon the Hudson. George W. Curtis, Esq., in his memoir of Mr. Downing, says of this place: "I have often passed a week there without wishing to go outside the gate, and entirely forgot there was any town near by." It contains six acres highly cultivated, in lawn and garden, with fountain, gate-music, trees, ornamental and fruit, in every variety. Mansion spacious, with tower, verandahs, gas, water, &c.; carriage, coachman's and ice houses; barns and henneries, graperies and greenhouses filled with every variety. Buildings in collegiate Gothic style, and walks graveled. It is a first-class residence, and highly praised by the experienced eye of Miss Frederika Bremer, in her letter to Mr. Downing's friend. Parties wishing to purchase the premises desired can do so and have a residence that could be occupied the entire year. The drives in its vicinity are excellent and picturesque, and amid scenes of great historical interest. The country seat and its surroundings have been made classic by eminent American and foreign criticism and revolutionary incidents.

The American Cyclopedia says of it: "That Mr. Downing succeeded so eminently in making the tastefully arranged grounds, afforded the first practical illustration of the builder's conception of an American rural home." The location commands grand and charming mountain and water views, unsurpassed upon this continent, embracing miles upon miles. Describing the premises, a distinguished American writer says: "The tickets seemed not to conceal but to annihilate the town; so secluded and satisfied was the guest of the garden that he was quite careless and incurious of the world beyond."

The buildings upon the premises could not be replaced for $60,000, and never-failing water and all the modern improvements contribute to make it one of the most beautiful and desirable homes on the Hudson. The neighborhood is unexceptionable, and the premises very accessible. The Fishkill station on the Hudson River Railroad is about fifteen minutes' drive from the premises, and fine boats ply regularly between Newburgh and New-York.

This is an exceedingly rare opportunity, as such desirable premises are not often for sale, this being the second time in about a half a century.

Terms made easy. Apply to or address TIMOTHY CHONIN, Counsellor-at-Law, No. 161 Broadway.

FOR SALE OR TO LET—STATEN ISLAND PROPERTY.—An elegant cottage containing twelve rooms on Princess Bay, one mile from railroad depot, with barns, sheds, stables, carriage, ice, hen, Summer and bathing houses, in complete order; fruit in abundance, excellent garden, well and rain water at door; grounds tastefully arranged, about eighty acres, with the whole or any part thereof. Also, twenty acres with good dwelling thereon, in high state of cultivation, in Westfield, Union County, New-Jersey, containing and basement, containing 26 rooms, barn, stables and sheds, well calculated for boarding, public house or school, ¼ mile from railroad depot and beach. Also, the property formerly Staten Island Oil Company, wharf and buildings, suitable for almost any kind of manufacturing purposes. ALBERT JOURNEAY, No. 8 Pine-st.; H. B. BAILEY, No. 220 Broome-st.

ELEGANT COUNTRY RESIDENCE FOR SALE—One hour from the City by the New-Jersey Railroad, and three minutes' walk from depot. Built of brick, with double walls, stuccoed, and finished in the most substantial manner, containing all the modern conveniences and improvements. No expense has been spared in making this a first-class residence. The premises comprise 12 acres, mostly laid out in lawn, large garden under high state of cultivation, and plenty of all kinds of choice fruit. It is located on three streets, in a first-class neighborhood, and surrounded by a beautiful hedge. The house alone cost nearly $12,000 to build, five years ago. Price, $20,000. Apply to E. C. BREWSTER, Rahway, N. J.

THE METROPOLITAN FAIR.

A WEEK OF GREAT SUCCESS.

Receipts Nearly Half a Million Dollars.

One Hundred and Twenty Thousand Visitors During the Week.

THE FEATURES AND ATTRACTIONS.

The first week of the great fair has passed, and its success is decided and unequivocal. Not a day has passed since its opening but it has been crowded to overflowing, and all visitors have been both pleased and astonished at the perfection of its arrangements, the beauty of its ornaments, the value and magnificence of the goods displayed, and the perfect order maintained. And all have been also pleased and gratified at its great success. Nothing unpleasant in the slightest degree has occurred. The general distribution of stands to different parties was made with care, and so as to add to the beauty of the building. The arrangement for the sale and taking of tickets is perfect, and has prevented all confusion. The precautions against fire are complete, and remove all apprehensions, and the police arrangements are so thorough that not a theft has occurred.

Several pickpockets, thinking it an excellent chance for them to operate, came up to the fair, but they were detected before they had a chance to work, were shown up through the building and then dismissed. In fact, the arrangements and management have been in every particular admirable, and the labor of the various committees has been crowned with success.

The number of visitors during the week is estimated at about 120,000, and the gross receipts to be nearly half a million dollars. It has been impossible as yet to get the exact amount, but it cannot be far from the sum above mentioned.

The various departments have all been very largely attended, and liberally patronized. It was generally acknowledged that the prices of the goods on sale are extremely moderate, and that in the purchases they have received.

The various stands have all done very well, and the ladies who attend them say their receipts are very satisfactory, and if they say so, it must be true. The gentlemen find that the only way to please them is to purchase something from each of them, look at every curiosity on their stands (paying ten cents for so doing), and drop a piece of postal currency, or, if you would be in especial favor, a greenback, in the contribution basket of each, for wounded soldiers, or in the stocking or box provided to receive it, and which they have under their special charge. This, by the way, is getting to be a great feature. Almost every stand is ornamented with some article, which from its beauty or peculiarity attracts attention; sometimes the figure of a wounded Zouave—sometimes a soldier's widow, or a soldier's home—which on close examination proves to be a receptacle for contributions for the fair. And each gentleman who is so wary as to stop and look at it, is immediately assailed by the fair one who has the care of it, and, of course, leaves the stand not quite as rich as when he approached it. Some of these "man-traps" have cleared as high as $25 per day, and the malicious little fairies who preside over them actually seem to think it fun. The gentlemen, however, do not seem to feel at all dissatisfied with them. The price they say is small, and the approving smile of a pretty girl well worth the money. Those young gentlemen who have not yet tried it, will do well to try a few of them and see if we're not right. One thing is sure, if they try it once they will be certain to try it again.

Although great numbers of articles have been sold, they have been immediately replaced, and the stands throughout the fair look as complete and handsome as they did the opening day, and the ladies say they will keep them looking just as nice until the end of the fair. They have plenty of goods and wish to sell them all. There is an express office in the building near the machinery department, where purchasers may leave their goods, and for a very moderate price have them delivered at their houses. The express is very prompt and reliable, and is very useful.

The evening concerts given by Gusfalla's celebrated band, are also very popular, nothing can be more pleasant than to wander through the halls, listen to the sweet and excellent music, varied by the singing of numerous canary birds and the merry laughter of the ladies, unless it is, perhaps the privilege of escorting the fair ones afterward to the restaurant, and partaking with them of a dainty little lunch.

SODA WATER.

At the soda-water stand, which does a good business, and where excellent soda can be had for ten cents a glass, the rule is adopted of giving no change back. Signs are put up to this effect, but many who do not notice them are made victims to an amount largely in excess of the ten cents they expected to pay. It is doubtful whether this rule is a good one. "A joke's a joke," but there are many people who do not know how to take one, even if it be mixed with a first-class beverage.

THE RESTAURANT.

The restaurant has also been largely patronized, but people do not yet seem to understand the extent and perfection of its arrangements. Provisions have been made to supply everything, from a sandwich or plate of cream to a costly and elegant dinner. Parties who intend coming to the fair during the afternoon or evening, can stop at the restaurant in the morning, leave the order for such a dinner as they wish, and at the hour named the dinner or supper, no matter how extensive, will be prepared for them, and in a manner not to be excelled by any restaurant in the City. Mrs. Rousaud, who superintends the restaurant, says that merchants who keep the goods she needs, have, with but few exceptions, neglected to send in their contributions, and she has, for that reason, been obliged to purchase almost all she has used. It seems too bad that this, one of the most important departments in the Fair, should be thus neglected and rendered unable at its close to return the amount which is justly expected from it. It is, therefore, to be hoped that those merchants will promptly respond. Sugar, butter, eggs, spices, and, in fact, everything in the grocery and provision line, will be acceptable, and after this hint will doubtless be provided. One thing may be remembered; there is no danger of sending in too much. The business is too good for there to be any fears of that.

THE CONTEST FOR THE SWORDS.

In the contest for the swords, which commenced on Monday, the utmost interest has been exhibited, and excitement now begins to color it. Purses are pulled out readily by enthusiastic admirers of their favorite General or naval officer, and while in most instances the enthusiasm is limited to its exhibition to a dollar, and the registry of one vote, in several cases, it has reached as high as fifty of both, and in a great many to five, ten, &c. Ladies participate in the interest and excitement, and for once allowed the privilege of a vote, zealously exercise it. At the closing of the fair Saturday night, 6,345 votes had been registered for the Army Sword, of which Gen. McClellan had received 2,313 and Gen. Grant 1,680; Gen. McClellan gained on the week 432 votes. For the naval swords there had been registered 224 votes; of which Admiral Farragut received 119, Commodore Rowan 62, Admiral Dupont 26, and the balance scattering; Admiral Farragut 56 ahead. Of course the latter contest pales before the former, and if the excitement upon the army sword increases this week proportionally with last, Greenbacks will roll out and individual names go down by the hundred. On Saturday an enthusiastic Grantite remarked he had a thousand dollars which he was ready to give whenever necessary to turn the scale for Grant. "I have a thousand more," retorted an excited McClellanite, "to give to keep the scale for McClellan. When these gentlemen find the emergency has arisen, they will have to engage the services of a corps of copyists.

THE ROMAN TABLE—MISS CUSHMAN AND THE SCHOOL OF DESIGN FOR WOMAN.

A superb book of engravings selected from Canova, valued at five hundred dollars, has been given by Miss Cushman to the fair, on condition that the purchaser present it to the "School of Design for Women." A subscription book has been opened at the Roman table, to assist the generous donor, in carrying out this act of two-fold benevolence. Subscriptions, large or small, will be received.

LIBRARIES ON THE FAIR.

Two hundred copies of a remarkable historical fragment from the pen of Dr. Francis Lieber have been printed for the benefit of the Metropolitan Fair, and will be found for sale at the library, we believe. The title of the fragment is "Washington and Narcissus," and it is a keen dissection and comparison of the character of these two notables. A portion of the paper was originally printed by the author under the caption, "Was Narcissus a Traitor?"—the discussion of which question was elicited by certain letters, some of which belong to a body of correspondence addressed by James Buchanan to Dr. Lieber himself, while others are contained in the officially published correspondence of the Emperor with his brother James. Dr. Lieber draws his characters with a vigorous hand, and brings their peculiarities to view in a few brief touches. The intrinsic value of this little pamphlet, as well as its clear and elegant appearance, ought to make each of the 500 copies sell for a dollar apiece.

Another little book which ought to be read by every person on this continent as well as those on the other from sentiments, is for sale at the fair, and is entitled "The Philanthropic Results of the War in America." It is a record of the contributions made by the different States of the Union, and the population thereof, for the raising, organization, equipment, and transporting of the soldiers of the Union. The facts and details given in the book are truly astounding. The abundant contribution of the community, has been of course, of men, and, as the author says, "each State has given the service the purest, gentlest, noblest blood which flowed in the veins of its sons;" but, besides this terrible gift, there have been contributed by the States an aggregate of over $212,000,000, for the benefit of our Union. The book, and the facts contained in it, were gotten together by a merchant of this City, and Mr. Hartley, who had already contributed $5,000 to the Fair, has presented it with 6,000 copies of this book, to be sold for its benefit. The printers, Wynkoop, Hallenbeck & Co., have also made a contribution of $1,000 copies, to which the binder has added 500.

The Spirit of the Fair, the neat little daily paper issued under Fair auspices, offers daily, some admirable additions to our literature from the most popular writers, living and dead. A hitherto unpublished treatise by the great novelist, James Fenimore Cooper, headed "New-York," but discussing the question of State Rights and collateral political issues is being given in instalments. Major-Gen. John A. Dix contributes an article to last Friday's issue, on the "Six Writers of the Augustan History," in which he makes various philosophical remarks, and tells various good stories of Roman Emperors, and from his authorities he draws the conclusion that the Emperors "will be found, not only like ordinary men, but like men in high position of our own time—persons who loved their little jokes, and would have them in spite of all the trappings of royalty and all the responsibilities of extended empire." The spirit of the Fair is a good spirit, and one that should be in the possession of every visitor and his wife.

PRICE OF ADMISSION.

The price of admission to the main hall still remains at $1; the doors are opened promptly at 11 o'clock A. M., and at 10 o'clock P. M. the drum corps beat the signal for all to depart. This week the fair will probably be fully as well attended as it was last, and those who wish to see the goods will do well to go in the mornings.

THE YOUTH AND THE FAIR.

The "Mount Washington Institute" Exhibition for the Fair will take place at Niblo's Saloon on Wednesday evening. The public know something of the enterprising spirit of the students of this time-honored Institute, so ably conducted by Prof. Geo. W. Clarke, and there is no doubt that all present at this exhibition will feel amply repaid for their trouble. Tickets and programme as per advertisement.

THE UNION SQUARE BUILDINGS.

The oratorio on Saturday evening was finely given and the audience very large. The musical entertainments are great attractions, and will be given every evening this week; the afternoon performances for children will also be continued.

For the little ones there are a number of stalls specially. One of these is completely stocked with a collection of dolls of every size and description. Upon the counter sits a very pretty little girl, about eight years of age, dressed like an old lady of sixty, with cap and kerchief and spectacles. This little lady told our reporter very demurely that she was the grandmother of all these dolls, and kept them in order.

THE KNICKERBOCKER KITCHEN.

The only drawback to the success of this old Dutch institution is the limited size of the room, which renders it impossible to accomodate the rush of visitors; but want of room is a drawback to the whole Fair.

There are many curious old relics to be seen in the parlor attached to the kitchen. The portrait of the little Holland Lady is that of the grandmother of Mrs. Sharp, of Ulster County, who presides at the spinning wheel. The portrait was painted nearly 150 years ago, and the subject of it was the daughter of a Dutch physician man, who came over from Holland and settled in Ulster County about that time. In the china closet of the kitchen is exhibited a curious old leaden candlestick, once used by Gen. Washington in the Revolutionary war. Mrs. Clarson has contributed to this china closet some rare old family antiquities, once used by her Dutch ancestors in their "kitchen," and the Bensman family have also aided in fitting out this sine qua non of an ancient Dutch burgher's household goods.

The table in the kitchen is well served; everything is home-made and good; no such mince pies are to be bought for money at any restaurant in this City. The receipts here average $1,000 per day.

The International Department, which the Spirit of the Fair acknowledges to be the most finished and beautiful room in either building, is alone worth coming fifty miles and paying double the present price of admission to see. The goods exposed for sale in this department, it must be remembered, are rare and choice—sent expressly from foreign countries to the Sanitary Fair. All the novelties in European fancy goods and toys are to be found here.

THE POST-OFFICE AND THE FAIR.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In your paper of yesterday a correspondent inquires as to "What has been done by the Custom-house and Post-office for the benefit of the Sanitary Fair?"

In reply, permit me to say, in reference to the latter, that although the salaries of the clerks and employes of the Post-office are small, yet they have contributed, from time to time, in various ways, according to their means, for the benefit of this noble object.

But with a view of raising a sum to be donated distinctively from this office, on the last pay day they contributed to the amount of $700, which sum has been duly paid over to the Treasurer of the Sanitary Commission. Yours, &c.,

ABRAM WAKEMAN.

The Fourth National Bank.

Hon. George Opdyke, President of the Fourth National Bank, addresses the following card to the stockholders, relative to the existing difficulties therein:

To the Stockholders of the Fourth National Bank of the City of New-York:

The difficulties existing in the Board of Directors of this bank having been noticed in one or more of the morning papers of Saturday, in a spirit of great unfairness towards me, and evidently intended to produce prejudice against me in the minds of my stockholders, I beg to ask that they will suspend judgment in the premises until the meeting called for Thursday, the 14th inst., when a full and candid statement of the facts will be presented to them.

GEORGE OPDYKE.

Shot while Attempting to Desert.—Yesterday afternoon, at about three o'clock, as a squad of recruits, in charge of Capt. Kerley, were passing down Broadway, one of them, named Michael Waters, who had enlisted at Albany, under the assumed name of McGowan, attempted to escape, and ran into Broad-street, followed by Capt. Kerley and Sergts. O'Hara and Williamson, who ordered him to stop. Waters paid no attention, and kept on his flight up New-street into Exchange-place. Near the corner of Broad-street he was overtaken by the officers, who fired their revolvers, a shot from one of them entering the back of Waters' head, coming out under his eye, causing his immediate death. The body was conveyed to the First Precinct station-house, where it now awaits coroner's action. The Captain and the sergeants are also detained until after the action of a coroner's jury. The soldier shot, to-night, was a member of the One Hundred and seventieth New-York, just recruited.

Important Decision under the Non-Intercourse Laws.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

Before Judge Betts.

The United States vs. Steamer Josie and her Cargo.—This was a libel of information filed under the act of Congress of July 13, 1861, which provides that "all goods and chattels, wares and merchandise coming from an insurrectionary State or section into the other parts of the United States, and all proceeding to such State or section by land or water, shall, together with the vessel or vehicle conveying the same, be forfeited to the United States."

The Josie was a small steamer formerly called the Earle. She was captured in an attempt to break the blockade, condemned by the District Court of Florida, brought here and sold at public auction, Joseph Enoss, of this City, becoming her purchaser. He put some repairs on her, put a cargo on board, and cleared her for Havana. Before she left the port, however, she was seized, and these proceedings were commenced against her and her cargo. Her cargo was principally potatoes, apples and cabbages. There was, however, on board some cases of dry goods and liquors, and a light wagon and harness. The Government gave evidence by which they endeavored to show that these goods were the property of a man named J. Howard Wagner, and that he was a resident of Alabama; while the claimant gave evidence to show that Wagner was a resident of Nassau, and that the goods were the property of the claimant, paid for by him on Wagner's order, and to be delivered to him at Nassau, on his paying the price.

There was also found on board in the chest of the steward, some Masonic books directed to a resident of Charleston, S. C., and a witness was called who testified that he gave them to the steward to carry to their address, and that the steward sold him the steamer was going to run the blockade. The steward was not called as a witness by either party, but there was evidence that he had left the vessel after her seizure with Custom House Officers, and had not been seen since.

There was also found in the valise of Craig, the assistant engineer, a small piece of merino cloth for a baby's dress, with a letter addressed to a man named Conley at Montgomery, Ala., unsigned, but stating that the writer had "concluded to send some merino." Craig himself had been living in Florida for some years. He was captured on a vessel coming from there, and taken to Key West, whence by some mistake he was brought here, and was here discharged by the authorities. He testified that he had shipped on the vessel to go to Havana, and meant to leave her there, and that if he could not have got his wife out from Florida, he should have gone to her if he could; that his parents lived in New Jersey, and that while he was with them a sister of this man Conley applied to him to take a note to her brother, but said nothing about any baby's dress; that his valise was packed by his parents, and sent to him on board the vessel; that he had not opened it, and did not know of the package for Conley until the valise was searched on board the vessel by the Custom-house officers, and that no one on the vessel knew of his intention to go farther than to Havana.

The Government gave evidence to show that the vessel was fitted to run the blockade, and the claimant gave evidence to show that she was fitted to run among the West India Islands or anywhere on short voyages.

The claimant proved the payment by him of the purchase-money for the vessel. The bill of sale of the vessel, signed by the United States Marshal of Florida, however, left the name of the purchaser in blank. A Custom-house officer testified that one day, on the dock, he met the claimant, and spoke to him about having bought the vessel, and that the claimant said he did not own her. This, however, was positively denied by the claimant.

Evidence was also allowed, under the claimant's objection, of statements in reference to the ownership of the vessel by third parties, which were made not in presence of the claimant or any of his agents.

The Government claimed that the vessel was forfeited on several grounds, viz.: that she was not really owned by the claimant, but by residents of the Insurrectionary States; that she was not bound as she purported to be, on a voyage to Havana, Nassau and back to New-York, but was really intending to run the blockade; that she was conveying the liquors and the wagon to residents in the rebel States; that the baby's dress was certainly proceeding thither, and that the conveyance of that by her even to Havana was sufficient to forfeit the vessel.

It was urged by the claimant that the evidence showed that he was the only owner of the vessel and the whole cargo, and that she was bound upon the voyage for which she had cleared; that there was no proof that any of the goods were going to the rebel States in the vessel, and no proof that the claimant had any knowledge of the presence on board of either the Masonic books or the baby's dress, and that a vessel could not be forfeited by the presence on board, without the knowledge of her owner or master, of articles which some other person might have put on board with a design to send them ultimately by another conveyance to the rebel States, but that either she must be herself proceeding thither, or must have articles on board known to her owners to be proceeding thither.

The Judge, after stating the pleadings in the case, thus proceeds:

"The determination of this case depends upon a minute tissue of indirect and inferential evidence spread out before the court in extended statements, verbal and written, elaborated and expounded by counsel with great ability and earnestness. Whichever conclusion may be adopted by the court on the multiplex and very dubious reliability of no inconsiderable portion of the evidence, there is little probability that the parties will be inclined to receive the decision as a finality in the case, it being moreover almost a plenary in this class of prosecutions.

On finishing the study of the cause accordingly, I deemed it excusable to forbear the task of collecting, analyzing and collating the mass of proofs furnished in the suit and vindicating with exactitude the deductions adopted by the court. The course will rather be to declare with perspicuity the result of my views of the case as it stands before me, and have it abide the ultimate judgment of the higher courts upon the solidity of the considerations which governed the present determination.

I therefore declare: First, that the statute referred to is positively prohibitory to citizens or residents alike, in the loyal and insurrectionary States during the existing war, from all intercommercial intercourse and dealing, with a view to reciprocity of gains, or in manifestation of feelings of amity and aid toward each other, either in acts of material support or friendly encouragement to the benefit of the enemy. The property intended to be used to those ends, and the vehicle employed to convey it, gratuitously or for profit, are alike confiscable, if seized proceeding to effect such purpose. The absolute culpability of the property is independent of all questions of contraband or blockade. If then any of the cargo of the Josie was on its way to be delivered within the rebel States, it would fall within the interdiction of the law, without regard to its intrinsic value or adaptation to belligerent uses, or the degree of progress made in completing the object of the parties concerned in the attempt.

Second—I think there is reasonable ground of suspicion, amounting to prima facie proof, arising out of the evidence before the court that the ownership of the vessel itself was not really and honestly acquired by Enoss, the claimant, nor was it intended that the title should be vested in his name, or that she should be authoritatively controlled by him or any actual loyal owner. This evidence is strengthened by proof of declarations made by Enoss on the subject, by the appearance of the document exhibited as evidence of his title, and other incidental particulars attendant upon the transaction.

Third—I regard the evidence, considered as a totality, as presenting a case of reasonable suspicion that all the goods and property on the vessel when she was arrested had previously been obtained for the use and enjoyment of inhabitants or persons then residing in or belonging to the insurrectionary States, and was, when seized, proceeding to their use and aid.

Fourth—So, also, in my opinion, the proofs, from a reasonable and grave ground of suspicion and uncontradicted, amount to prima facie evidence that the wagon and harness, the liquors procured and shipped on board the vessel, and other items put in her charge, were severally the property of rebels, and were seized in the act of proceeding at sea to the use and aid of residents in the insurrectionary States, with the knowledge of the claimant of the vessel, and furthermore, as before suggested, reasonable cause of belief is created by the proofs that the vessel herself is enemy property, or was placed wholly at his use and benefit by means of the transactions connected with her purchase and despatch on this voyage.

Fifth—In my opinion the evidence adduced by the claimant does not so obviate the force of the proofs given on the hearing for the libellant, as to prevent its legal effect of exacting the condemnation of both vessel and cargo.

Judgment of condemnation and forfeiture accordingly ordered.

For the Government, the District Attorney and Messrs. Webster and Craig. For claimant, Messrs. Benedict, Burr and Benedict.

As a love token Phalon & Son's matchless extract of the night blooming Cereus is the most appropriate in the whole catalogue of souvenirs. Cupid, fresh from his nest of rose leaves and with their aroma on his wings, could not infuse into the air such enchanting fragrance.—Chicago Tribune.

HUBBEL & CO.'S GOLDEN BITTERS, FOR SALE AT THE METROPOLITAN FAIR.

We respectfully invite attention to and consideration of the justly celebrated and reliable remedy for Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Debility and Prostration. The proprietors are proud to acknowledge the unparalleled success which has attended the sale of their valuable preparation, known in nearly every portion of the civilized world as the

"GOLDEN BITTERS."

We risk nothing when we term them a valuable preparation, for they are one of the few articles of the present day which are not a humbug; and we are willing and able to satisfy any person or persons who will call upon us, that the celebrated "Golden Bitters" are a genuine tonic and hygienic article. It is the wish of the proprietors that the virtue of the article be tested before condemning. A decision of their merits by any one who has tried them, is worth a million of purchased bogus testimonials.

FOR CREATING A HEALTHY APPETITE

they are invaluable, and are unequaled as a Tonic. They are mild in their action, and operate by giving vigor and strength to the system—not by any change they produce in the solids, but through the medium of the living principle.

THEY ARE PURELY VEGETABLE,

being composed of Gentian Root, Calamus, Sassafras, and many other remedial agents of the Vegetable world, all preserved in Jamaica Rum.

AS A BEVERAGE

they are the most wholesome, invigorating and palatable stimulant ever offered to the public. And the fact of their being prepared chemically and scientifically, precludes the possibility of a bitter, unpleasant taste, common to Bitters generally offered for sale. We especially recommend them to the Ladies, and particularly to those suffering from

DEBILITY, WEAKNESS AND PROSTRATION.

Half a wine glass of these "Bitters" three or four times a day will produce a remarkably healthy change in persons greatly debilitated.

The "Golden Bitters" have been tried and not found wanting. They are put up in quart bottles, and for sale by Druggists, Grocers, &c., throughout the world. Each bottle bears a fac simile of the signature of Hubbel & Co.

It has been from time immemorial the object of philanthropists to find some remedy for the ills of life, and scientific skill has for ages explored every avenue in order to discover the hidden secret. It has been, however, reserved for modern science to bring before the world the great destroyer of disease, and in HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS are concentrated all those virtues which tend to promote healthy and vigorous life. Unlike the generality of bitters, they are not an alcoholic mixture, but a pure tonic, composed entirely of vegetable substances. They are a positive cure for

DYSPEPSIA, AND
DISEASES RESULTING FROM DISORDERS OF THE LIVER AND DIGESTIVE ORGANS, AND WEAKENED AND DEBILITATED FRAMES BECOME RENEWED WITH ALL THE VIGOR OF HEALTH.

The reputation of this preparation is not of a day, nor a month, nor a year, nor is it confined within a limited space, nor is it but known and appreciated by those who move in the circle of fashion and refinement. It is, on the contrary, world wide, and the triumphs of this article have blessed alike the rich and the poor, while like the snow that falls gently on the earth, so this friend of mankind causes its blessing to descend upon the suffering and afflicted. Its virtues are known in every quarter of the inhabitable globe, and the wonderful cures which it is daily performing have wonder it the highest post in the temple of science. With such recommendations, backed by incontestible and undoubted testimonials from those who have experienced its curative properties, giving to the public no assertion but what has passed through the crucible of truth, and supported by an array of splendid and hitherto unknown triumphs, what wonder is it that thousands rush to it for relief in the hour of danger.

NEW-YORK TESTIMONY.

From John B. Wickersham, Esq., firm of Wickersham & Hutchison, the celebrated manufacturers of fancy iron works, No. 269 Canal-st.:

* * * * * * *

I am the recipient from you of one of the greatest favors that can be conferred upon man, viz: That of health. For many years have I suffered from one of the most annoying and debilitating complaints that the human family can be afflicted with, Chronic Diarrhœa. During the long time I was suffering from this disease I was attended by regular physicians, giving me but temporary relief. The cause seemed to remain until I was induced to try Hoofland's German Bitters. After the use of a few bottles of that valuable medicine, the complaint appeared to be completely eradicated.

I often inwardly thank you for such a valuable specific, and, whenever I have an opportunity, cheerfully recommend it, with full confidence in its reliability.

Truly yours, JOHN B. WICKERSHAM.
New-York, Feb. 2, 1864.

From Julius Lee, Esq., firm of Lee & Walker, the most extensive Music Publishers in the United States, No. 722 Chesn

[illegible] Mr. Cox replied that he had explained [illegible] Mr. Cox said, in conclusion: "We have do take the old States to make the Union. This is the platform on which we expect to meet you next Autumn. We will never surrender the country to the Secessionists or the Abolitionists."

Mr. ELLIOT, of Pennsylvania, (Union,) said two remarkable features had been presented to-day. They had seen the Speaker move a resolution of expulsion, and the gentleman from Ohio (Cox) justify by indirection what he dared not ridicule directly, namely, the language and purpose of his colleague (Long) in a brief passing phrase. He observed the countenance of his colleague, while the remainder of his hour was given to the justification of treason. As to the gentleman, Mr. STARNES, of Ohio, he now stood on the war platform in favor of a vigorous prosecution of hostilities, for the rescue of the Union, urging by his votes and examples the people of Ohio to sustain the Government in maintaining its supremacy over every inch of this broad territory. It would not do to talk of abstract opinions, uttered three years ago, any more than it would to impugn the patriotism of Gen. Borum for voting for Buchanan at the Charleston Convention. The question before us is a question of law. The member whose expulsion is moved swore and subscribed to the oath of loyalty. The oath did not exist in 1861. It was under that oath the gentleman's colleague is arraigned. Plea of abstract views of the Constitution could not be raised for the sanction of treason. The whole subject is adjudicated. The Supreme Court of the United States, by which the gentleman of Ohio used to stand, has passed upon the question. He would find that the court has declared that this Government is now involved in a terrible war, and is required by the law of nations to treat the rebels under the Constitution as alien enemies. The sentiment (Long) uttered more fully than others dared to do the day note on the Democratic side. Among the soldiers of Pennsylvania you would not find one in five hundred who would not brain the gentleman for uttering in camp the doctrines he uttered with impunity in this hall. The gentleman had taken occasion to assail his colleague, but when the cat is away the mice will play. He advised them to keep in their holes hereafter. (Laughter.) He further replied to Mr. Cox, and in the course of his remarks said such sentiments as had been avowed would reduce them all to subjugation to JEFFERSON DAVIS and the infernal band who had made nearly a quarter million of graves, filled with the best and bravest men of the land. He rose to expose the mean pettifogging of the champions of secession on this floor.

Mr. DAWSON, of Pennsylvania, alluding to a remark made yesterday by Mr. GARFIELD, wished to say he spoke only for himself, and not for the Democratic party. He wished further to say, the gentleman (GARFIELD) also spoke for the Order of the Golden Circle, being, under the protection and patronage of the Democratic party. There might be a society known as the Golden Circle, but for himself, as a Democrat, he declared that he had no knowledge of any such Order, and with no intercourse with the Democratic party in Pennsylvania and everywhere else, and in his intercourse here, he scarcely ever heard any reference made to the Order. He knew nothing of its circumstances.

Mr. WASHBURNE objected to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WASHBURNE) proceeding in his remarks.

Mr. BANKS, resuming his seat, unanimous consent being requisite for him to continue his speech.

Mr. MALLORY, of Kentucky, (Dem.,) made a few remarks in appealing to expelling a man for words uttered in debate.

Mr. FERNANDO WOOD, (Dem.,) of New-York, said that he would read to the House the exact language of the gentleman from Ohio, (Long,) which had not been properly stated.

Mr. WASHBURNE—Was you present yesterday?

Mr. WOOD replied that he was not, but that he held in his hand the identical manuscript. He thought it was due to the gentleman (Long) before the House voted on the resolution that they should hear what the gentleman did say. The language is as follows:

"I know believe there are but two alternatives, either an acknowledgment of the South as an independent nation, or their complete subjugation and extermination as a people. Of these alternatives I prefer the former."

Mr. WOOD continuing, said—If the gentleman from Ohio (Long) is to be expelled for the utterance of these sentiments, you may include me for a concurrence in them.

Mr. MALLORY, in concluding his remarks, said he did not concur in these sentiments.

Mr. COX stated what he understood Mr. Long to say yesterday.

Mr. LONG said he had the manuscript now before him from which he read. He procured his speech four weeks ago. He had not altered a word.

Mr. COX did not believe after the gentleman had so long deliberated he had changed a word. In order that members should see the printed speech which will appear in the Globe of Monday next, Mr. COX suggested, and there was unanimous consent given, that the consideration of the pending resolution should be postponed until Monday, at 3 o'clock.

Mr. WASHBURNE, of Illinois, then offered the following:

Whereas, the Hon. BENJ. G. HARRIS, a member of the House of Representatives from the State of Maryland, has upon this day uttered the following language, to wit:

"The South asked you to let them in peace, but no, you said you would bring them into subjection. That if we done yet and God Almighty grant that it never may be. I hope you will never subjugate the South."

And,

Whereas, Such language is incendiary and across contempt of this House, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the said BENJAMIN G. HARRIS be expelled from this House.

Mr. WASHBURNE demanded the "previous question" thereon.

Mr. PENDLETON, of Ohio, (Dem.,) raised a point of order, and quoted the rules in support of his position.

Mr. WASHBURNE insisted that he had distinctly and specially complied with the rules. The resolution was just as much in order as was that of the gentleman from Indiana (COLFAX) for the expulsion of Mr. Long.

Mr. COX desired to respond to the gentleman from Illinois (WASHBURNE.)

Mr. WASHBURNE declined to yield the floor, and was loudly called to "order," from the Opposition side.

Mr. COX—I call the member from Illinois (WASHBURNE) to order.

Mr. WASHBURNE—I call the gentleman from Ohio (Cox) to order.

Mr. COX—I object to debate except by consent.

After other minor proceedings, the Speaker pro tem. declared Mr. WASHBURNE's resolution to be in order.

Mr. COX moved that the House adjourn.

The motion was voted down.

Mr. ANCONA, of Pennsylvania, (Dem.,) moved that the resolution be laid on the table.

The motion was disagreed to by a large vote.

The question on the resolution for the expulsion of Mr. HARRIS was then taken and resulted as follows: yeas 81, nays 45:

ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

Lieut.-Gen. Grant and the Troops—What is Thought of the Movement—Expected Movement of Capitalists—A Peculiar Case of Desertion.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, Friday, April 8, 1864.

To those accustomed only to the unrestrained freedom of opinion and action vouchsafed to all in civil life, it is a matter of wonder and surprise how readily, without remonstrance even, the men composing the Grand Army of the Union gave up their old and tried commanders and familiar associations, hallowed by many memories on many a hard-fought battle-field, around which cluster all the memories of the past so dearly cherished by the patriotic soldier. Lieut.-Gen. GRANT suddenly assumes command of this devoted body of troops, radical changes are made at will, disintegrating corps—separating men bound together by the most holy ties of association; corps commanders are removed and others are appointed to fill their places; in fact, whole corps are wiped of existence by the single dash of the pen, and all this is done without creating any public remonstrance whatever on the part of the officers and men most affected thereby. True, had the parties directly interested in the changes been consulted the gallant old First and Third Corps would have retained their distinctive organizations as they now do their almost sacred badges; but so well disciplined is the Army of the Potomac, and of such material is it composed, that, as Gen. HOOKER once said, they never know when defeated, unless told so by an officer wearing a Major-General's shoulder-straps. Without disparagement to the Union armies elsewhere, I predic that the new Commander-in-Chief, after seeing these troops in one pitched battle, will feel disposed to say that he never saw such fighting before. In common with others, I have looked forward anxiously to witness the effect upon both officers and men of the recent reorganization. An extensive acquaintance throughout the army has enabled me to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion as to the actual tone and temper of officers and men. From two to three years' service has taught them the first and most important lesson of a soldier—to obey. In this instance they have considered the matter philosophically, and with a preconceived preference for the present organization, coupled with the fact that the order, as is generally believed, emanates from a successful commander, the transition has been to them, comparatively, an easy one; they feel that the service has already required much sacrifice on their part, and they unreservedly make additional sacrifices, because it is deemed best for the glorious cause in which they are engaged. The national reputation of Gen. GRANT is as dear to the soldiers composing the Army of the Potomac to-day, as though he had always served with them; they speak of his splendid strategic movements, his indomitable energy and skillful management of troops under adverse circumstances, with a pride becoming men who appreciate true greatness in a military commander. Gen. GRANT has already won the hearts of all with whom he has come in contact here—not by any apparent effort on his part, but by his evident honesty of purpose, and a cool, calm determination, manifested in every act, to retain the confidence of the American people, by striking a fatal blow at the rebellion, by crushing the formidable army now in hostile array before him. That he will be successful in this effort is the firm conviction, I believe, of every man in the army to-day. How men feeling thus can fight, let the record of events, soon to take place, bear witness.

One of the most important developments caused by the recent change in military affairs is to be seen in the proposed operations of capitalists—the most far-seeing and shrewdest class of men to be found the world over. It is said that, believing the enemy will soon be forced to evacuate Virginia, agents, representing large monetary interests, are already on the qui vive to secure eligible sites for manufacturing purposes. The Rappahannock River has already been, or is about to be, mapped out to this end. On this river, between Fredericksburg and Rappahannock Station, on the Orange and Alexandria Railroad, there are at least half a dozen places where with little labor a never-failing water power can be obtained, equal to anything on the Merrimac. The facilities for reaching tide-water are good—by the Orange and Alexandria Railroad to Alexandria, 50 miles—over the Fredericksburg and Richmond Railroad to Aquia Creek, or the Potomac, 16 miles. Vessels of the burden of 120 tons have ascended the Rappahannock to Fredericksburg. I make no charge for this hint.

A private in the First Connecticut Cavalry has recently been sentenced to Dry Tortugas during the full period of the war, for desertion. This case is peculiarly a hard one, and as there are other men similarly situated in the same regiment, it is proper that the defense of this man should be made public. The prisoner is a native of North Carolina, served two years in the rebel army, and was captured, with others, at Gettysburgh. Tired of the Confederate service, he took the oath of allegiance to the United States Government, and was discharged as a prisoner of war, at this time, believing that he would be drafted into the service of the United States, he enlisted in the First Connecticut Cavalry, then stationed in Baltimore, with the understanding that he would be sent for duty in some fortification, or else to fight Indians on the frontier. At a subsequent period his regiment was ordered to the front, and knowing what his fate would be if captured by the enemy, he deserted the command. There are some fifty or more men similarly situated, in the same regiment, and an earnest appeal has been made to the proper quarter to have them sent to some less exposed position.

A case, recently published in one of the pictorial weeklies, called "On Picket," causes considerable amusement in the army. A solitary soldier is represented standing picket in a snow storm in the rear of a formidable place of artillery. Men accustomed to picket duty are puzzled to know for what purpose a big gun is placed in such a position for, and, when looking at the scene, pity the poor soldier who would be held responsible for the aforesaid cannon in case a small party of the enemy should drive him in.

Capt. Freeman, of the Ninety-third New-York Volunteers, A few days ago, received a letter from Gen. Geo. Sangster, late Lieutenant-Colonel of the One Hundred and Fifteenth New-York Volunteers, Col. Sangster, now on duty in Florida. Col. Sangster graduated at Union College, is a lawyer by profession, and was at one time county judge of Saratoga County, his native place. His brother officers, while gratified at his promotion, regret to part with so genial a gentleman and so good an officer.

Amidst all the horrors of war, many incidents occur amusing in themselves, and which sometimes under the most trying circumstances, are provocative of mirth, and form subjects for camp circles months after. I have seen a Sutler's tent, which was filled with bacon, upset on a shower of the finest marketable article of fresh, and fall around them, and for many other cool and foolish things. But the following, which actually took place at Mine Run, surpasses anything I remember to have ever seen or heard: On one of those biting cold mornings, while the camps of MEADE and LEE were staring at each other across the little rivulet known as Mine Run. When moments appeared to be hours and hours days, no sooner at hand seemed the deadly strife, a solitary sheep leisurely walked along the rank on the rebel side. A rebel sharpshooter fired and killed the sheep, and, dropping his gun, advanced to remove the prize. In an instant he was covered by a gun in the hands of a Union soldier who said, "Divide in the street, or you can even stand Jessup." This proposition was accepted to, and there, between the two patriotic lines, Mr. REBEL shouldered the sheep, cut one half and moved back with it to his post, when his challenger, in turn, dropping his gun, treated the rest, got the other half of the sheep and again informed the duties of his post. Amidst the cheers of the surrounded who expected to keep him out of the, Of the subsequent fate of this man, we cannot speak, but an other book of the same, we can declare, he deserves the warm latitudinary applause upon by those two soldiers.

E. A. F.

AN ALLEGED PICKPOCKET ARRESTED.—JAMES BRAHAM, a young man, was arrested on Friday night by Officer Cox, of the Eighth Precinct, on a charge of having stolen a gold watch, valued at $100, from Jean Mills, of No. 64 Bank-street. Mills, it appears, was looking at a fire in Canal-street, when Braham put his arm around him, and inserting his hand in his pocket, stole the watch from the vest pocket. The complainant immediately seized Alm by the collar, and secured him of the theft, when he was seen to drop the watch by Alfred M. Wirts, of No. 126 Wooster-street, who, picked it up, and returned it to Mills. BRAHAM, who denied all knowledge of the transaction, was arraigned before Justice Dowe at the Jefferson Market Police Court, and committed to answer in default of $1,000.

PROPOSALS

PROPOSALS FOR FORAGE.

CHIEF QUARTERMASTER'S OFFICE, ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, No. 1 BEAVER-ST., NEW-YORK, April 1, 1864.

SEALED PROPOSALS are invited by the undersigned, for supplying the United States Quartermaster's Department, at Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Md., Alexandria and Fort Monroe, Va., or either of these places, with Hay, Oats, Corn and Straw.

Bids will be received for the delivery of 1,000 bushels of corn or oats, and 50 tons of hay or straw, and upward.

Bidders must state in which of the above-named places they propose to make deliveries, and the rates at which they will make deliveries thereat, the quantity of each article they propose to deliver, and the time when said deliveries shall be commenced and completed.

The price must be written out in words on the bids.

Corn to be put up in good stout sacks, of about two bushels each. Oats in like sacks, of about three bushels each. The sacks to be furnished without extra charge to the Government. The hay and straw to be properly baled.

The particular kind of hay, of oats, of corn, hay or straw, proposed to be delivered, must be stated in the proposals.

All the articles offered under the bids herein invited will be subject to a rigid inspection by the Government Inspector before being accepted.

Contracts will be awarded from time to time to the lowest responsible bidder, and the Quartermaster of the Government may require, and payment will be made when the whole amount contracted for shall have been delivered and accepted.

The bidder will be required to accompany his proposal with a guarantee, signed by two responsible persons, that in case his bid is accepted, he or they will, within ten days thereafter, execute the contract for the same, with good and sufficient sureties, in a sum equal to the amount of the contract, to deliver the forage proposed in conformity with the terms of this advertisement; and in case the said bidder should fail to enter into the contract, they to make good the difference between the offer of said bidder and the next lowest responsible bidder, or the person to whom the contract may be awarded.

The responsibility of the guarantors must be shown by the official certificate of a United States District Attorney, Collector of Customs, or any other officer under the United States Government, or responsible person known at this office.

All proposals received under this advertisement will be opened and examined at this office on Wednesday and Saturday of each week, at 12 M.; Bidders are respectfully invited to be present at the opening of bids, if they desire.

D. H. RUCKER,
Brigadier-General and Quartermaster.

FINANCIAL.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF NEW-YORK.
No. 9 Wall-st., New-York.
DESIGNATED DEPOSITORY AND FISCAL AGENT OF UNITED STATES.

NATIONAL 10-40 FIVE PER CENT. LOAN.

In accordance from the Secretary of the Treasury, dated March 31, last, this Bank will receive subscriptions for the National 10-40 Five Per Cent. Loan, in coupon bonds or registered certificates, redeemable after ten and payable forty years from date, in sums, and will allow to banks, bankers and brokers the usual commission of one-eighth of one per cent.

This loan bears gold interest, payable semi-annually, on coupon and registered bonds of $100 and over, and principally on bonds of the denominations of $50 and 100 dollars.

For subscribing, parties have requested to pay the accrued interest from the first of March to the day of subscription in coin, or in currency adding fifty per cent premium.

The interest on this Loan is payable on the first days of March and September in each year. The semi-annual coupons are payable at these dates, and the annual coupons on the $50 and 100 dollar bonds are payable on the first of March.

The Secretary of the Treasury states his instructions in the following words:

"On the above terms, the First National Bank of the City of New-York, of which you are the President, is authorized to receive subscriptions to the National 10-40 Loan, and it is hoped that its exertions—on the stock exchange and active employment of which great reliance is placed—will be attended with complete success.

Very respectfully,
(Signed) S. P. CHASE,
Secretary of the Treasury.

To S. C. Tenbroeck, Esq., President.

The coupon bonds will be ready for delivery early in April, and the registered bonds on the first of May.

Remittances may be made in legal tender notes, National Bank notes, or in drafts, &c., payable in this City, at discount.

JAMES CUMPHEY,
Cashier First National Bank.

$1,000,000 LOAN
OF THE
COUNTY OF NEW-YORK.

PROPOSALS FOR $1,000,000 SOLDIERS' BOUNTY FUND BONDS.

(Being the Balance not awarded on Bids for $2,000,000 opened April 2, 1864.)

Sealed proposals will be received at the Comptroller's Office until Saturday, April 16, 1864, at 12 o'clock P. M., when the same will be publicly opened, for the purchase of the whole or any part of the $1m of One Million Dollars of the "Soldiers' Bounty Fund Bonds," authorized by an Ordinance of the Board of Supervisors, passed March 15, 1864, laid by an Act of the Legislature of the State of New-York, passed Feb. 9, 1864, being the amount not included in bids for $2,000,000 opened April 2, 1864.

The said bonds will bear interest at the rate of six per cent per annum, payable semi-annually on the first day of May and November in each year, and the principal will be redeemable as follows: Five hundred thousand dollars Nov. 1, 1884, and five hundred thousand dollars Nov. 1, 1894.

The proposals will state the amount of bonds desired and the price per one hundred dollars thereof; and persons whose proposals are accepted will thereupon be required to deposit with the County Treasurer the sums awarded to them respectively.

On presenting to the Comptroller the receipts of the County Treasurer for such deposits, the parties will be entitled to receive bonds for equal amounts of the par value of the sums awarded to them, bearing interest from the date of payments.

Each proposition should be sealed and indorsed "Proposals for Soldiers' Bounty Fund Bonds," and inclosed in a sealed envelope, addressed to the Comptroller.

The right is reserved to reject any or all of the bids, if considered necessary to protect or promote the interests of the county.

The property of this Company is located in the Township of Butler Schuylkill County, and consists of 2,000 acres of land, about 2,000 acres of which are exclusively coal lands, lying within the great Mahony Coal Basin of the middle or Schuylkill coal field of Pennsylvania, is precisely in range with the Girard lands of the city of Philadelphia, the Brock estate, and other large and productive collieries of this rich coal district.

The large Collieries owned by this Company have all the usual necessary real and personal property, consisting in part of first-class breakers, machinery, mineral houses, office, mine cars, horses, mules, &c.

The Company is entirely free from debt of any kind.

It is estimated that the Company's Collieries will earn during the nine months ending the 31st of December next, 25 least fifteen per cent, net upon the capital, will pay a dividend of 3½ per cent. on the 1st of July next, and in all probability one of 5 per cent on the 1st of October following.

TRANSPORTATION.

The Company's facilities for transportation are by Mineral Railroad, connecting with Reading Railroad at Schuylkill Haven, distance 114 miles from Philadelphia; also by Mahony and Broad Mountain Railroad, (which runs through the entire length of the estate,) distance 107 miles from Philadelphia.

The interests of these roads now run to each colliery owned or located on the lands.

We are authorized to receive subscriptions for the limited number of 10,000 shares of the stock of the above Company at par, which is all that will be offered for subscription in New-York.

We have no hesitation whatever in calling the attention of our friends and the public to this property.

The books will be open at our office on WEDNESDAY, 13th April instant.

MORSE & CO.,

April 6, 1864.

NEW-YORK, April 4, 1864.

I visited this Mine in the month of December, 1863, accompanied by Guido Kuster, the most distinguished Metallurgist and Mining Engineer on the Pacific coast, for many years the Manager of the Ophir Works, and author of a valuable treatise on the "Processes of Silver and Gold Extraction," recently published in California. My opinion of the value and quality of this Mine is based on information derived from this gentleman, and on my own observations at the Mine.

The Mine is situated in Arizona, about three miles north of the northern boundary line of Sonora, and five miles distant from the celebrated Mowry Silver Mines; it is accessible at all seasons of the year, either by the way of San Angelos, Libertad, or Guaymas. But little work has been done in developing the mine; enough, however, to disclose the main features of the lode and determine the quality and value of the ores.

Where the shaft is sunk the vein is from four to six feet wide between lime-rock and gneiss, running east and west, and exhibits galena or sulphuret of lead, carbonate of lead, lime-blend and copper-pyrites; the richest is the sulphuret, of which I picked out hundred and fifty-five dollars per ton; the vein has been prospected about half a mile. Mr. Kustel, in a letter addressed to the San Francisco owners, says: "The San Antonio lode appears, where the shaft is sunk, a good wide vein of ore, easy to reduce by fire, and will pay on an average, according to the proportions of the different metals, from seventy to ninety dollars per ton."

I believe there is an abundant supply of this ore, and that by an expenditure of a comparatively small sum of money, the mine can be put in a condition to produce 40 tons per day, and that the ores averages only $60 per ton, the gross product of the mine will be $2,400 per day; the entire cost of mining and reducing a ton of this ore will not exceed twenty dollars.

On the premises, about 200 yards from San Antonio lode, in a N. E. direction, there is a very rich copper lode, six feet wide; the ores which we obtained from this lode averaged a fair average yield, viz., 20 per cent copper and $70 in silver. Miners can be obtained in any number in the immediate vicinity, at about $40 per month.

The reduction works of the mine are three miles distant from the mine, consisting of a small engine and two furnaces. There is an abundance of wood and water for all purposes on the property.

I consider the San Antonio very valuable Silver Mine. If worked with skill and energy, it will produce most satisfactory results.

FINANCIAL.

TEN-FORTY GOVERNMENT LOAN.
UNITED STATES TREASURY.
NEW-YORK, April 5, 1864.

By direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, I hereby give notice that I am prepared to receive subscriptions on account of United States Bonds authorized by the act of March 3, 1864, bearing date March 1, 1864, redeemable at the pleasure of the Government after ten years, and payable forty years from date, bearing interest at five per centum a year, payable on bonds not over $100 annually and on all other bonds semi-annually, in coin.

Subscribers will receive either registered or coupon bonds, as they may prefer.

Registered bonds will be issued of the denominations of fifty dollars, ($50,) one hundred dollars, ($100,) five hundred dollars, ($500,) one thousand dollars, ($1,000,) five thousand dollars, ($5,000,) and ten thousand dollars, ($10,000,) and coupon bonds of the denominations of fifty dollars, ($50,) one hundred dollars, ($100,) five hundred dollars, ($500,) and one thousand dollars, ($1,000.)

Subscribers to this loan will have the option of having their bonds draw interest from March 1 or September 1, as the case may be, by paying the accrued interest in cash, (or United States notes, or the notes of National Banks, adding fifty per cent. for premium,) or receive them drawing interest from the date of subscription and deposit.
